Disraeli and the Rise of a New Imperialism 1996 postmodernism has often been presented as a new theory of liberation that promotes pluralism and gives representation to the marginalised peoples of the non west and other cultures in this major assessment of postmodernism from a non western perspective ziauddin sardar offers a radical critique of this view covering the salient spheres of postmodernism from architecture film television and pop music to philosophy consumer lifestyles and new age religions sardar reveals that postmodernism in fact operates to further marginalise the reality of the non west and confound its aspirations by tracing postmodernism s roots in colonialism and modernity sardar demonstrates that the dominant contemporary intellectual fashion peddling an insidiously oppressive and subtle revisionism is the most comprehensive onslaught on the non west ever experienced in stern retort the author offers ways in which the peoples of the non west can counter the postmodern assault and survive with their identities histories and cultures intact

return to marxist theory and revolutionary politics revitalize the educational left at a time when capitalism appears to be unstoppable what actions need to be taken in both local and global arenas to overcome the exploitation that the globalization of capital has wreaked upon the world

The New Imperialism 1972 this book discusses the nature of china s current international reassertion of itself and the thinking and attitudes which lie behind it it argues that the chinese leadership has a strongly held view of its own high moral authority which emphasises inclusion equality and mutual benefits and that this sense of morality underpins the driving forces for china s foreign policies the geo strategic reasoning for outward expansion china s strategic culture the idealistic rationalization of china s overseas activities the overall chinese worldview and china s vision of the chinese world order based on original research into both writings for policy making purposes which indicate realistic assessments of world politics and of china s international capacity and also narratives for public consumption which have less emphasis on self interest and realpolitik the book approaches the subject empirically and not through the lens of any international relations theory it highlights how china s outward expansion has been characterized mainly by spreading influence through non use of force and strategies of inclusiveness co operation and winning without fighting the book concludes however that beijing s self privileging high morality may have the unfortunate consequence of reinforcing its own behaviour which defies international order and which others disapprove of thereby increasing the likelihood of non armed and armed conflicts
