Surprised by God 2016-09-01 screenwriters and film directors have long been fascinated by the challenges of representing the listening experience on screen while music has played a central role in film narrative since the conception of moving pictures the representation of music listening has remained a special occurrence in situated listening the sound of absorption in classical cinema author giorgio biancorosso argues for a redefinition of the music listener as represented in film rather than construct the listener as a reverential concertgoer music analyst or gallery dweller this book instead shows how films offer a new way of thinking about listening as distributed experience an activity made public and shareable across vast cultural spaces rather than an insular motion it shows how cinema functions as not only a reservoir of established modes of listening but also an agent in the development of new listening practices as biancorosso argues many films have perpetuated a long existing paradox of music as a means of silencing consider an aggressive score overlaying battle scenes or a romantic scene conveying unspoken intimacy in the place of conversational exchange exists a veil of sound in the form of music and situated listening explains why this function influences both the course of interpretation and empathy experienced by film spectators by focusing on cinematic physical and emotional scenery surrounding a character viewers can recognize aspects of their own lives developing a deeper empathy for each fictional character through real and shared listening practices evolution our exceptional abilities created life as we know it but we are also deeply flawed this extraordinary contradiction between our faculties and frailties is the essence of what it means to be human and history has played out in the balance between them here Lewis Dartnell tells our story through the lens of this uniquely fragile nature for the first time from cognitive biases to endemic diseases he explores how human biology has shaped relationships societies economies and wars across the globe and considers how importantly it continues to challenge and define our progress a gripping red blooded narrative from a master storyteller Jo Marchant author of Cure a wild ride Tim Harford author of How to Make the World Add Up

Effective First-Person Biblical Preaching 2012-12-29 the harrowing medical journey of a cancer survivor is the story of one woman's courageous and at times page turning story coping with a severe illness that lasted more than a decade it began with a diagnosis of low grade bladder cancer and ended with the removal and or reconstruction of vital organs although the story is specific to bladder cancer and its aftermath it covers aspects inherent in any serious and sometimes life threatening illness typical emotions experienced during such a frightening illness are discussed anger hope depression fear anxiety and yes even pleasure and satisfaction successful and not so successful ways of coping with these difficult emotions are also discussed covering such aspects as cancer groups and psychotherapy the support of family and close friends and assertiveness with bossy medical personnel there are over seventy three thousand cases of bladder cancer a year in the United States in some cases simple surgery to remove the tumors will be the only treatment in other cases the bladder may be removed and a new one reconstructed from a section of large intestine in still other cases as in the author's the bladder cancer can metastasize or spread to other organs about 5 percent of people in the United States with bladder cancer will die from it the good news is that less people are dying from it each year although the harrowing medical journey of a cancer survivor is a story about the treatment and finally cure of bladder cancer it should be helpful to anyone living through a difficult possibly life threatening illness topics are covered that apply to anyone going through such an illness topics such as undergoing major surgery choosing the great as well as the inadequate doctors and surgeons finances staying fit nutrition the anxious wait for reports like CT scans and biopsies chemotherapy the dread of inevitable treatments like dialysis and transplants in addition and because the author is a novelist this story is often gripping and non put downable

Being Human 2019-04-07 there is someone behind us telling us that somewhere there exists another person in the world living a life parallel to ours someone who feels the same things and is perhaps doing the same thing at this very moment but what happens when two parallel lines intersect the impossible happens and what should not happen happens if soulmates do exist and if we have the desire to find them that doesn't mean that the meeting will make our lives easier or give us solutions the narrator of this novel reveals to us his encounter with Raquel his soulmate with him we discover how two people are born in the same city almost on the same day marry similar people give their children the same names and write very similar books without ever having seen each other or met until they reach the age of forty an existential cataclysm this experience only serves to move these two characters further into exile Raquel says something entirely unexpected is a journey to the limits of logic do you remember the poor man wearing a djellaba who would beg for money next to the school the one on the corner two corners and the school in the middle the black metal door I remember that you would run to give him a coin before they closed the door always arriving to class last I wanted to sleep a little more you were always in my dreams he would dance do you remember the rulers they used to hit our hands and they would say met la main put out your hand but then your hand would automatically move back when the ruler came close and once again met la main as if it were normal for a child to like being hit and we still have good memories from that school who are we we are the people from the memory the past is that story that never stops changing

Beyond Mary or Martha 2016-01-08 debuting in its first edition News Now visual storytelling in the digital age helps today's broadcast journalism students prepare for a mobile interactive and highly competitive workplace. The authors all faculty members of the prestigious Cronkite School of Journalism and Mass Communication bring their real world expertise to a book designed to be a trusted reference for the next generation of broadcast journalists.

Curious Little Girl and the Witch on the Hill 2012-08-01 planned and written specifically for teaching and preaching needs this critically acclaimed biblical commentary is a major contribution to scholarship and ministry.

News Now 2017-10-23 there are no clear demarcation lines between magic astrology necromancy medicine and even sciences in the pre modern world under the umbrella term magic the contributors to this volume examine a wide range of texts both literary and religious both medical and philosophical in which the topic is discussed from many different perspectives. The fundamental concerns address issues such as how people perceived magic whether they accepted it and utilized it for their own purposes and what impact magic might have had on the mental structures of that time. While some papers examine the specific appearance of magicians in literary texts others analyze the practical application of magic in medical contexts. In addition this volume includes studies that deal with the rise of the witch craze in the late fifteenth century and then also investigate whether the Weberian notion of disenchantment pertaining to the modern world can be maintained. Magic is oddly but significantly still around us and exerts its influence focusing on magic in the medieval world thus helps us to shed light on human culture at large.
