does the city region constitute a new departure in urbanisation if so what are the key elements of that departure the realities of the urban in the 21st century are increasingly complex and polychromatic the rise of global networks enabled by supranational administrations both governmental and corporate strongly influences and structures the management of urban life how we conceive the city region has intellectual and practical consequences first in helping us grasp rapidly changing realities and second in facilitating the flow of resources ideas and learning to enhance the quality of life of citizens two themes interweave through this collection within this broad palette first are the socio spatial constructs and their relationship to the empirical evidence of change in the physical and functional aspects of urban form second is what they mean for the spatial scales of governance this latter theme explores territorially based understandings of intervention and the changing set of political concerns in selected case studies in efforts to address these issues and improve upon knowledge this collection brings together international scholars building new data driven cross disciplinary theories to create new images of the city region that may prove to supplement if not supplant old ones the book illustrates the dialectical interplay of theory and fact time and space and spatial and institutional which expands on our intellectual grasp of the theoretical debates on city regions through practical knowing citing examples from europe the united states australasia and beyond this book was originally published as a special issue of regional studies

The Futures of the City Region

urban regions have come under increasing pressure to adapt to the imperatives of mobility including greater freedom of travel rising trade volumes and global economic networks whereas urbanization was once characterized by the concentration of services and facilities urban areas now have to ensure the exchange of goods services and information in a much more complex interrelated highly competitive and spatially dispersed environment as a consequence cities are challenged to ensure the functionality of infrastructure while mitigating negative environmental and social impacts cities regions and flows brings together debates in a single volume to present a theoretical framework for understanding the changing relationship between places and movement it analyses the significance of flows of goods for urban and regional development and emphasises the twin processes of integration and disintegration that result from goods movement within urban space it discusses urban regions as nodes for organizing the exchange of goods services and information against a background of socio economic and technological change as well as new patterns of urbanization the new logistics concepts and practices that have been developed in response to these changes exert both integrative and disintegrative effects on cities and regions it also considers how urban policies are dealing with related challenges concerning infrastructure provision land use local labour markets and environmental sustainability cities regions and flows contains thoughtfully prepared case studies from five different continents on how cities manage to become part of value chains and how they strive for accessibility in an increasingly competitive environment this book will be of interest to policy makers and advanced classes in planning geography urban studies and transportation there are now more than three hundred city regions around the world with populations greater than one million these city regions are expanding vigorously and they present many new and deep challenges to researchers and policy makers in both the more developed and less developed parts of the world the processes of global economic integration and accelerated urban growth make traditional planning and policy strategies in these regions increasingly inadequate while more effective approaches remain largely in various stages of hypothesis and experimentation global city regions represents a multifaceted effort to deal with the many different issues raised by these developments it seeks at once to define the question of global city regions and to describe the internal and external dynamics that shape them it proposes a theorization of global city regions based on their economic and political responses to intensifying levels of globalization and it offers a number of policy insights into the severe social problems that confront global city regions as they come face to face with an economically and politically neoliberal world at a moment when globalization is increasingly subject to critical scrutiny in many different quarters this book provides a timely overview of its effects on urban and regional development one of its most important but perhaps least understood corollaries the book also offers a series of nuanced visions of alternative possible futures

Europe

1992

essay from the year 2005 in the subject economics international economic relations grade 20 university of st andrews department of economics language english abstract the debate about the effects of globalisation on cities is controversial on the one hand scientists and journalists predicted the end of the city due to technological change especially in the area of telecommunications implying that an increased number of home workers and the possibilities of video conferences would make calm suburbs or rural areas more attractive in comparison to a grid locked and expensive downtown area 1 yet whenever the abstract idea of globalisation is illustrated in newspapers or tv it is not a suburb or the green hills of fife that are shown rather symbols of globalisation like manhattan or tokyo look more like ridley scott s nighttown in bladerunner in contrast to the prediction of declining cities globalisation seems to boost the growth of cities in a way that many scientists influenced by the ideas of alfred marshall and joseph schumpeter started to write about global cities world cities or global city regions leamer storper called global cities the big winners of the internet age 2 but what are exactly the effects of globalisation on the functions and economy of cities in order to examine these effects it is useful to address two questions 1 why do firms choose cities as a location in general section 2 1 and 2 how does globalisation affect this reasoning section 2 2 section 3 summarises the results

OECD Regions and Cities at a Glance 2018

this book takes you on a unique journey through american history taking time to consider the forces that shaped the development of various cities and regions and arrives at an unexpected conclusion regarding sustainability from the american dream to globalization to the digital and information revolutions we assume that humans have taken control of our collective destinies in spite of potholes in the road such as the great recession of 2007 2009 however these attitudes were formed during a unique 100 year period of human history in which a large but finite supply of fossil fuels was tapped to feed our economic and innovation engine today at the peak of the oil age the horizon looks different cities such as los angeles phoenix and las vegas are situated where water and other vital ecological services are scarce and the enormous flows of resources and energy that were needed to create the megalopolises of the 20th century will prove unsustainable climate change is a reality and regional impacts will become increasingly severe economies such as las vegas which are dependent on discretionary income and buffeted by climate change are already suffering the fate of the proverbial canary in the coal mine finite resources will mean profound changes for society in general and the energy intensive lifestyles of the us and canada in particular but not all regions are equally vulnerable to these 21st century megatrends are you ready to look beyond america s most livable cities to the critical factors that will determine the sustainability of your municipality and region find out where your city or region ranks according to the forces that will impact our lives in the next years and decades find out how resource availability and ecological services shaped the modern landscape emerging megatrends will make cities and regions more or less livable in the new century your city or region ranks on a sustainability map of the united states urban metabolism puts large cities at particular risk sustainability factors will favor economic solutions at a local rather than global level these principles apply to industrial economies and countries globally this book should be cited as follows j day c hall e roy m moersbaecher c d elia d pimentel and a yanez 2016 america s most sustainable cities and regions surviving the 21st century megatrends springer new york 348 p

Effects of Globalisation on City Regions

the region is back in town galloping urbanization has pushed beyond historical notions of metropolitanism city regions have experienced in edward soja's terms an epochal shift in the nature of the city and the urbanization process marking the beginning of the end of the modern metropolis as we knew it governing cities through regions broadens and deepens our understanding of metropolitan governance through an innovative comparative project that engages with anglo american french and german literatures on the subject of regional governance it expands the comparative angle from issues of economic competitiveness and social cohesion to topical and relevant fields such as housing and transportation and it expands comparative work on municipal governance to the regional scale with contributions from established and emerging international scholars of urban and regional governance the volume covers conceptual topics and case studies that contrast the experience of a range of canadian metropolitan regions with a strong selection of european regions it starts from assumptions of limited conversion among regions across the atlantic but is keenly aware of the remarkable differences in urban regions path dependencies in which the larger processes of globalization and neo liberalization are situated and materialized second rank cities are back on the academic scene capturing the interest of scholars with their unexpected recent performance with respect to first rank cities looking at the data on average urban gdp growth in 139 european cities since 1996 the relatively strong position of large cities over 1.5 million inhabitants on national growth coincides with the periods of fastest expansion while at times of slowdown second rank cities prevail especially in the recent period of economic downturn second rank cities have recorded annual gdp growth rates much less negative than those of capital cities and in some european countries like austria and germany all cities have outperformed their capitals in explaining this phenomenon linking urban dynamics to agglomeration theories seems the most interesting approach however merely to link agglomeration economies to urban size in order to interpret urban performance is neither convincing nor sufficient and it calls for additional investigation into how agglomeration economies work this volume claims that interpretation of the current dynamics in european urban systems especially in the western part of europe would benefit from exploitation of the traditional concept of agglomeration economies however necessary for this purpose are more in depth considerations on the nature scope intensity and causes of agglomeration economies which do not relate their existence solely to urban size and this is where the main challenge for scholars lies in the interpretation of the missing link between agglomeration economies and urban dynamics this book was originally published as a special issue of european planning studies

A Morphological Approach to Cities and Regions

virtually every city region in west and central europe has developed policies and strategies to attract retain and encourage creative industries and knowledge intensive services since most of these city regions tend to see a creative knowledge economy as the best bet for the future one of the main goals of such policies and strategies is increasing the international competitiveness of their city region using the cities of amsterdam barcelona birmingham helsinki leipzig manchester and munich as case studies this book explores the spatial economic historical socio demographic socio cultural and political conditions that may determine whether a city region is or can become attractive for creative and knowledge intensive companies and for the talented people working for or founding these companies a comparison of the case studies and an overview of the key findings similarities and differences which lead to policy recommendations as well as suggested directions for further research will make this book attractive to urban and regional academics planners and students

Parallel Patterns of Shrinking Cities and Urban Growth

this book explores cities and the intra regional relational dynamics often overlooked by urban scholars and it challenges common representations of urban development successes and failures gathering leading international scholars from europe australia and north america it explores the secondary city concept in urban development theory and practice and advances a research agenda that highlights uneven development concerns by emphasising the subordinate status of secondary cities relative to their dominant neighbours the book raises new questions about regional development in the global north it considers alternative relations and development strategies that innovatively reimagine the subordinate status of secondary cities and showcase their full potential
