coburn provides a fresh and careful translation from the sanskrit of this fifteen hundred year old text drawing on field work and literary evidence he illuminates the process by which the devī mähātmya has attracted a vast number of commentaries and has become the best known goddess text in modern india deeply embedded in the ritual of goddess worship especially in tantra coburn answers the following questions among others is this document scripture how is it that this text mediates the presence of the goddess what can we make of contemporary emphasis on oral recitation of the text rather than study of its written form one comes away from coburn s work with a sense of the historical integrity or wholeness of an extremely important religious development centered on a text the interaction between the text and later philosophical and religious developments such as those found in advaita vedanta and tantra is quite illuminating relevant here are the issues of the writtenness and orality aurality of scripture and the various ways by which a deposit of holy words such as the devī mähātmya becomes effective powerful and inspirational in the lives of those who hold it sacred

the bible tells us noah was a just man perfect in his generations genesis 6 9 noah and abraham both were the righteous before god even in seemingly hopeless circumstances abraham held onto god s promise and believed because of his unwavering faith god counted him righteous the word of god speaks of jesus the son of god who came by water and blood 1 john 5 6 and he completely blotted out all our sins can we genuinely hope and believe that jesus who walked the earth around 2000

years ago fully paid for our sins jesus bore all our sins through his baptism on the cross as he shed his blood he declared it is finished john 19 30 through his one sacrifice of sin forever hebrews 10 12 our sins were perfectly cleansed leaving our hearts pure like untouched snow those who place their faith in the gospel of the water and the blood are born again like noah and abraham by receiving the remission of sins if you ever ponder whether you can be as righteous and blameless as noah understand this christians with sin weighing down their hearts cannot claim to be god s children the answers you seek can be found within the pages of this book few figures from history evoke such vivid orientalist associations as marco polo the venetian merchant explorer and writer whose accounts of the far east sparked literary and cultural imaginations the essays in marco polo and the encounter of east and west challenge what many scholars perceived to be an opposition of east and west in polo s writings these writers argue that marco polo s experiences along the silk road should instead be considered a fertile interaction of cultural exchange the volume begins with detailed studies of marco polo s narrative in its many medieval forms including french italian and latin versions they place the text in its material and generic contexts and situate marco polo s account within the conventions of travel literature and manuscript illumination other essays consider the appropriation of marco polo s narrative in adaptations translation and cinematic art the concluding section presents historiographic and poetic accounts of the place of marco polo in the context of a global world literature by considering the production and reception of the travels this collection lays the groundwork for new histories of world literature written from the perspective of cultural economic and linguistic exchange rather than conquest and conflict the author challenges the breach between the secular and the religious rendering that breach ambiguous such ambiguity the author affirms is relevant to a time when rigid and simplistic notions of religion and secularity are used to justify thoughtlessness and even violence all too often the secular is thought of either as a triumph in overcoming the presumed irrationality and oppression of religion or as lament in losing the meaning religion is thought once to have offered atchley suggests a view of the secular as an opportunity to experience an immanent value that is neither controlled by the human self nor conferred by a divine entity
