ged recipients in terms of their earnings employment opportunities educational attainment and health the authors show that the differences in success between ged recipients and high school graduates are driven by character skills achievement tests like the ged do not adequately capture character skills like conscientiousness perseverance sociability and curiosity these skills are important in predicting a variety of life outcomes they can be measured and they can be taught using the ged as a case study the authors explore what achievement tests miss and show the dangers of an educational system based on them they call for a return to an emphasis on character in our schools our systems of accountability and our national dialogue contributors eric grodsky university of wisconsin madison andrew halpern manners indiana university bloomington paul a lafontaine federal communications commission janice h laurence temple university lois m quinn university of wisconsin milwaukee pedro l rodríguez institute of advanced studies in administration john robert warren university of minnesota twin cities
