writing workshop engaging today's students with a model that works through strategic routines, tips, resources, and short focused video clips, teachers can create the sights and sounds of a thriving writing workshop where both students and teachers are working authors. Students spend most of their time writing, not just learning about it. Student choice is encouraged to help create engaged writers, not compliant ones. Students are part of the formative assessment process.
Students will look forward to writing time, not dread it. From explanations of writing process and writing traits to small group strategy lessons and mini lessons, this book will provide the know-how to feel confident and comfortable in the teaching of writers. A story of one child's growth in writing lessons from a child explains how teachers can work with children, helping them to teach themselves and each other.
Matters of classroom management, methods for helping children to use the peer conference, and ways mini lessons can extend children's understanding of good writing are all covered here. Most important, the sequences of writing development and growth are thoroughly discussed. In a quick guide to teaching second grade writers with units of study, Lucy Calkins' chronicles a curricular calendar that will help teachers increase the volume of student writing, encourage students to lift the level of their writing by reviewing, rethinking, and rewriting their work, and empower students to write with greater independence. A quick guide to teaching second grade writers with units of study is part of the sessions that Leah discusses and that she will give you the know how and confidence you'll need to be successful. Carl Anderson, author of Assessing Writers Traditionally, the writing workshop is a three-part framework: a minilesson, writing time, and a share session. Because much attention has been given to lessons and conferencing, the share session has sometimes seemed like an afterthought rather than an opportunity for children to look closely at their writing process and discuss it with others. Don't Forget to Share by Leah Mermelstein helps you recognize the importance of this aspect of the workshop and shows you ways to get maximum instructional impact from it. Don't Forget to Share is the first book to take on the share session in depth, revealing why it's essential to the success of writing workshop. Mermelstein presents insight and smart ideas for conducting share sessions that honor and reinforce individual kids' accomplishments while at the same time offering them a safe way to get input from other writers. From setting up share sessions to facilitating them, she presents shares that promote rich conversations that support students' improvement in four specific areas of writing: content, craft, process, and progress. With in-action transcripts of teachers and students, helpful tips for working with English language learners and struggling writers, suggestions for matching children to share activities, and samples of effective teaching language, Don't Forget to Share has everything you need to not only invest your teaching time in share sessions but to make them work for you and your students. So if you're looking for a new way to ramp up the power of your writing workshop, take the advice of Leah Mermelstein.

question all too often during the independent work portion of writing workshop Leah Mermelstein has a solution for making this time more productive for both students and teachers. Mermelstein argues that the third essential element creating self-directed writers is key to the success of writing workshops. Using a wealth of classroom anecdotes, student samples, and specific teaching language, Mermelstein illustrates how even the youngest students can become self-directed learners. Her strategies include creating an appropriate physical environment along with daily rituals and routines, scaffolding instruction with write-alouds and interactive writing, and planning units, focus lessons, conferences, and shares that are aimed at helping kids become self-directed. Grades K-5 front cover and title page. Instruction in this series is organized around four grade-specific units of study at each level, and a book of if-then curricular plans for the four units of study at each grade level are organized around opinion, information, and narrative writing. Each unit of study contains 18-22 sequential sessions, subdivided into three to four bends, with each bend walking you step by step through the entire writing process from planning and drafting to revising and editing and eventually to publication. The grade-specific book if-then curriculum assessment-based instruction supports targeted instruction and differentiation with alternative assessment-based units. Each includes five to eight concise units of study for you to strategically teach before, after, or in between the core curriculum based on your students' needs, with increasing school mandates and pressure to perform well on standardized tests. Writing instruction has shifted to meet accountability, taking the focus away from guided reading and Both series are built around sequential units of study representing 4 to 6 weeks of instruction. Each unit of study contains 15 to 18 sessions, and each of these sessions is built on a coherent framework of regular features that include an introduction, a 10-minute minilesson, recommendations for conferring, share time suggestions for tailoring the lessons, suggest homework, and more. In addition, instruction in both series is supported by a side column rich with Lucy's coaching commentary and samples of real student work. Most importantly, both series were developed, piloted, and refined by Lucy Calkins and her colleagues from the Teachers College Reading and Writing Project. What special features are included in this resource? Each session has one of three new features: mechanics emphasizes the important language conventions that readers expect and that students need to master to become effective writers; assessment helps teachers look at a piece of writing with a growth line in mind; name what the child can do and plan the next.

too often during the independent work portion of writing workshop Leah Mermelstein has a solution for making this time more productive for both students and teachers. Mermelstein argues that the third essential element, creating self-directed writers, is key to the success of writing workshops. Using a wealth of classroom anecdotes, student samples, and specific teaching language, Mermelstein illustrates how even the youngest students can become self-directed learners. Her strategies include creating an appropriate physical environment along with daily rituals and routines, scaffolding instruction with write-alouds and interactive writing, and planning unit focus lessons, conferences, and shares that are aimed at helping kids become self-directed.
