and stability of transnational nature this seeks for comprehensive multidimensional collective and well coordinated responses the european union organization for security and co operation in europe united nations as well as other international organisations are able to really contribute to developing cooperative and coordinated responses to these threats by relying on its broad membership and profound expertise and experience according to the position of the european union a modern cost benefit oriented and effective border management system should ensure both open borders as well as maximum of security at the same time thus the union s endeavour is to safeguarding internal security to all member states through preventing transnational threats combating irregular migration and any forms of cross border crime for ensuring smooth border crossings for legitimate travellers and their belongings goods and services that is why the union s concept of integrated border management has been developed to ensure effective border control and surveillance and cost efficient management of the external borders of the european union the union s policy is and will continue to be developed on the basis of the three main areas in place common legislation close operational tactical cooperation and financial solidarity in addition integrated border management has been confirmed as a priority area for strengthening the cooperation with third countries in the european commission s strategic security management approach where non eu countries are encouraged as partners to upgrade their border security surveillance and border management systems

Transnational Corporations as Engines of Growth 1992

Transnational corporations (TNCs) are companies that operate in more than one country. They are often the largest and most powerful companies in the world. TNCs have a significant impact on the global economy and on the lives of people in many countries. In 1992, the World Bank published a report titled "Transnational Corporations as Engines of Growth". This report argued that TNCs are a key source of economic growth and development, particularly in developing countries. It highlighted the benefits of TNCs, such as job creation, technology transfer, and increased investment. However, it also acknowledged the challenges posed by TNCs, such as environmental degradation and labor rights issues. The report concluded that TNCs are a double-edged sword, and that their impact depends on the policies and regulations in place in the host countries.

over the last few decades the field of management enlarged its boundaries especially in international terms in a very rapid fashion mainly because of the arrival of the so called era of globalization many renowned scholars have criticized the universal approach given to management in the united states and its subsequent automatic conversion into international management but their arguments too can fall into the trap of universalism at times this book has a more specific concern to challenge the conversion of management into international management from a latin american perspective this challenge might be taken as a first step toward the construction of a latin american perspective in international management and a potential contribution to the development of this field in other parts of the world drawing upon such critical standpoint several authors in the book converge upon the idea that researchers practitioners and authorities in latin america should challenge the us dominance in international management and foster interdisciplinary developments within international relations the critical perspective provided in this book challenges the us s narrow viewpoint on management as it clearly does not fit the governance features of international management in latin america so far we have not observed the constitution of sub areas such as international management of international organizations international management of transnational institutions international management of public private networks international management of public companies and international public administration or international public management all of which would be extremely important in latin america
