much has happened in the newspaper profession and in the schools of journalism since this book was first published ten years ago the newspapers have covered a world war and war periods have always brought the greatest changes in american newspapers have wrestled with doubled costs of production reduced staffs much merging curtailed income and are now deep in the perplexities of reconstruction meanwhile schools and courses in journalism have greatly increased in number enrolment and branches of instruction when the book was presented in 1915 it was the first textbook entirely devoted to the problems and technique of newspaper desk work it has therefore been widely used in classes in copyreading headline writing and make up as well as in newspaper offices its contents have been put to a severe test and some have been found wanting the author himself in using it year after year in class filled many page margins with suggestions for improvement hence in preparation for its tenth anniversary it is well that the book should receive a thorough overhauling to bring it up to date to put in some things omitted before to make it more usable and teachable its general structure has not been changed most of the alterations are in the chapters on copyreading headline writing make up and type but many additions have been made in other chapters class exercises have now been added to each chapter to present in brief much of the technique of teaching as it has developed in the larger schools they are intended to be suggestive not only to the teacher but to independent students and young newspaper workers a bibliography has been added to suggest further reading in the schools of journalism the methods of teaching copyreading have developed during the period since first publication probably more than any other branch and have been somewhat standardized this historic book may have numerous typos and missing text purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book without typos from the publisher not indexed not illustrated 1918 edition excerpt newspaper morals by H. L. Mencken I aspired toward the end of my nonage to the black robes of a dramatic critic I took counsel with an ancient whose service went back to the days of our American cousin asking him what qualities were chiefly demanded by the craft the main idea he told me frankly is to be interesting to write a good story all else is dross of course I am not against accuracy fairness information learning if you want to read Lessing and Freytag Hazlitt and Brunetiere go read them they will do you no harm it is also useful to know something about Shakespeare but unless you can make people read your criticisms you may as well shut up your shop and the only way to make them read you is to give them something exciting you suggest then I ventured a certain ferocity i do replied my venerable friend read george henry lewes and see how he did it sometimes with a bladder on a string usually with a meat axe knock somebody on the head every day if not an actor then the author and if not the author then the manager and if the play and the performance are perfect then excoriate someone who does n t think so a fellow critic a rival manager the unappreciative public but make it hearty make it hot the public would rather be the butt itself than have no butt in the ring that is rule number 1 of american psychology and of english too but more destiny soon robbed me of my critical shroud and i fell into a long succession of less aesthetic newspaper berths from that of police reporter to that of managing editor but always the advice of my ancient counselor kept turning over and over in my memory and as chance offered i began to act upon it and whenever i acted upon
