during the past 30 years china has undergone extensive economic reform replacing the government s administration of enterprises with increasing levels of market oriented enterprise autonomy at the heart of the reform are changes in the employment relationship where state control has been superceded by market relationships these reforms have had far reaching implications for many aspects of everyday life in chinese society this book appraises the impact of the economic reforms on the employment relationship and in turn examines the effects on individual workers and their families including salaries working conditions and satisfaction job security and disparities based on location gender age skill position and migrant status in particular it focuses on how changes in the employment relationship have affected the livelihood strategies of households it explores the changing human resource management practices and employment relations in different types of enterprises including state owned enterprises foreign owned enterprises and domestic private enterprises throughout different industries focusing especially on textiles clothing and footwear and the electronics industry and in different regions and cities within china beijing haerbin lanzhou hangzhou wuhan and kunming overall this book provides a detailed account of the everyday implications of economic reform for individuals and families in china where did the era of divided government come from what sustains split partisan control of the institutions of american national government year after year why can it shift so easily from democratic or republican presidencies coupled with republican or democratic congresses how can the vast array of issues and personalities that have surfaced in american politics over the last forty years fit so neatly within indeed reinforce the sustaining political pattern of our time these big questions constitute the puzzle of modern american politics the old answer a majority and a minority party plus dominant and recessive public issues will not work in the era of divided government byron shafer a political scientist who is regarded as one of the most comprehensive and original thinkers on american politics provides a convincing new answer that has three major elements these elements in combination not divided government as a catch phrase are the real story of politics in our time the first element is comprised of two great sets of public preferences that manifest themselves at the ballot box as two majorities the old cluster of economic and welfare issues has not so much been displaced as simply joined by a second cluster of cultural and national concerns the second element can be seen in the behavior of political parties and party activists whose own preferences don't match those of the general public that public remains reliably left of the active republican party on economic and welfare issues and reliably right of the active democratic party on cultural and national concerns the third crucial element is found in an institutional arrangement the distinctively american matrix of governmental institutions which converts those first two elements into a framework for policymaking year in and year out in the first half of the book shafer examines how dominant features of the reagan first bush clinton and second bush administrations reflect the interplay of these three elements recent policy conflicts and institutional combatants in shafer's analysis illuminate this new pattern of american politics in the second half he ranges across time and nations to put these modern elements and their composite pattern into a much larger historical and institutional framework in this light modern american politics appears not so much as new and different but as a distinctive recombination of familiar elements of a political style a political process and a political conflict that has been running for a much much longer time bachelor thesis from the year 2019 in the subject review of business studies grade 13 technical university of munich tum school of management chair for management accounting language english abstract the bachelor thesis combines theories literature lab and field experiments event studies from the industry and its very own empirical research to argue from both a strategic as well as a financial perspective that an inimitable organizational culture of intrinsic motivation and meaningful work may constitute a source of competitive advantage within the war for talent the thesis strives at highlighting the importance for firms to adapt to the newly emerged competitive environment that the ongoing war for talent has created by considering their people as their most valuable asset for the success of the organization as already hinted at throughout the art of war by sun tzu in 500 bc hence the reference in the title of this thesis after a brief review of the circumstances that led to the emergence of the war for talent and first implications for the industry it is argued from a strategic perspective why motivated talent depicts the key resource for competitive advantage and why conventional extrinsic incentive measures aimed at maximizing productivity are no longer effective afterwards a proposition will be made of how capitalizing on intrinsic motivation human s inner drive to accomplish inherently interesting and challenging tasks fostered through a framework of meaningful work might be the decisive driver to get ahead in the quest for talent a second string of argumentation draws a connection between meaningful work and superior financial performance this proposition is then tested by an empirical analysis comparing the financial performance of publicly traded companies featured on the 2017 fortune 100 best companies to work for list against a control portfolio and the broad market confirming significant differences for cumulative stock returns this volume is the first in a new series of studies on the frontiers of international law the term frontier is traditionally associated with proximity to a boundary or a demarcation line but it is also a connecting point i e a passage or channel between spaces that are usually considered as separate entities the series aims to explore the visible and imaginary boundaries of scholarship in international law it is designed to test the existing table of contents vocabulary and limits of public international law to investigate lines and linkages between centre and periphery and to re map or re think some of its conceptual boundaries the current volume is written in this spirit it deals with the tension between unity and diversification which has gained a central place in the debate under the label of fragmentation it explores the meaning articulation and risks of this phenomenon in a specific area international criminal justice it brings together established and fresh voices who analyse different sites and contestations of this concept as well as its context and specific manifestations in the interpretation and application of international criminal law the volume thereby connects discourse on fragmentation with broader inquiry on the merits and discontents of legal pluralism in public international law
