Reflections of the Past 1997

despite predictions of the death of the past and the end of history the past refuses to go away in fact the start of the twenty first century has seen an upsurge of interest in popular representations of history on the large and small screen and of impassioned political conflicts over rival understandings of the past historical responsibility and apology have become contentious topics of domestic politics and of international diplomatic relations and memory a profitable commodity for sale to mass markets against this background how do historians deal with the problems of the search for historical truth the past within us approaches these issues by examining the problems of representing history in the popular media drawing on examples from east asian and american as well as european history it poses the question what happens when accounts of history are transferred from one medium to another how far does the medium shape the message how can historians deploy contemporary media in ways which evoke and develop the historical imagination from the romances of walter scott to steven spielberg blockbusters from online irish nationalism to japanese revisionist comic books the past within us explores some of the more dramatic modern popular representations and reflects on the key challenges and possibilities for the communication of history in a multimedia age this searching interpretation of past and present addresses fundamental questions about the fall of the roman empire why did ancient culture once so strong and rich come to an end was it destroyed by weaknesses inherent in its nature or were mistakes made that could have been avoided was there a point at which greco roman society took a wrong turn and in what ways is modern society different western history is split into two discontinuous eras aldo schiavone tells us the ancient world was fundamentally different from the modern one he locates the essential difference in a series of economic factors a slave based economy relative lack of mechanization and technology the dominance of agriculture over urban industry also crucial are aspects of the ancient mentality disdain for manual work a preference for transcending rather than transforming nature a basic belief in the permanence of limits schiavone s lively and provocative examination of the ancient world the eternal theater of history and power offers a stimulating opportunity to view modern society in light of the experience of our forebears

the Death of the Past 1970

roy rosenzweig and david thelen asked 1 500 americans about their connection to the past and how it influences their daily lives and hopes for the future the result is a surprisingly candid series of conversations and reflections on how the past infuses the present with meaning while the past is omnipresent to americans history as it is usually defined in textbooks leaves many people cold rosenzweig and thelen found that history as taught in school does not inspire a strong connection to the past and they reveal how race and ethnicity affect how americans perceive the past
