excerpt from a history of nursing vol 1 of 2 the evolution of nursing systems from the earliest times to the foundation of the first english and american training schools for nurses in executing our task we have been aware of our shortcomings and this the more keenly as we complete our first volumes yet perhaps the spirit of devotion in which we have worked may partly excuse both the defects that we are conscious of and possible errors of which we are unconscious we have tried however to quote only from authors of recognised authority and to penetrate as closely to original sources as possible about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works excerpt from hospital training school methods and the head nurse vol 1 one of the most significant and at the same time hopeful words used in discussing present conditions is the word problem we hear it everywhere church problems industrial problems social problems city problems rural problems loom up on every side the word itself is prophetic for as soon as a condition takes definite shape as a problem demanding solution the time of its solution is never very far distant the hospital world has its problems weighty and perplexing many of them are not the least of these is the training school the training school has been for years a very perplexing as well as a highly important part of hospital work considering the fact that every year boards of managers with but very imperfect conceptions of their responsibilities have been busy launching and managing training schools and that nurses and physicians with just as imperfect conceptions of the qualifications and requirements for teaching have assumed the responsibilities of instructors in these training schools it is not strange that the training school problem has arisen confusing and difficult as it is at present the condition would be still more unfortunate and discouraging if it were not regarded as a problem if this present chaotic condition did not perplex and disturb in the beginning of the era of trained nursing in america we were satisfied with a rudimentary training about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works death is inevitable none of us will escape it ending life with a terminal illness is a slow and rather lonely process i am interested in the question of why some nurses choose to work in the field of palliative care i am one who willingly stepped into the role of being with patients at their most vulnerable time when death became inevitable my nursing history has spanned fifty years of which the last twenty were in palliative care of terminally ill and dying patients what was it that influenced me to move from a curing model to comfort caring only my work is an account of how i discovered palliative care nursing after thirty years in the acute care setting i migrated to australia at the age of seventeen after the violence of world war ii and the death of my father in a refugee camp it seemed that taking on nursing was the best way to settle into a new life i was happy with general nursing but had a feeling that there was more i could contribute to my patient care my mother s unexpected death with cancer was responsible for showing the way she died in the hospice unit of the hospital where i was employed sitting by her side showed me another aspect of nursing that attracted me to a career change i transferred to the hospice after mother died and remained there for twenty years naturally i wondered why this change of direction happened susan bardy
