OC Campus Novel: A history professor experiences disturbing parallels between the furor over hiring decisions and an alleged case of sexual harassment on his own campus and the harassment of an anarchist commune on South Puget Sound in 1902. Seminar paper from the year 2002 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies. Literature grade 3.0. C. Uni. Jena. de. Institute for Anglistics American Studies course. British Campus Fiction. 6 entries in the bibliography. Language English. Abstract. The History Man is one of Malcolm Bradbury's seven novels and it was published in 1975. This satiric novel belongs to the campus fiction of the seventies. A campus novel is determined by the history of an university; it mirrors problems and crises of the institution at that time. The meeting of students and lecturers in this kind of novel is an important feature. Those two groups constitute the social system of the university and build up the story because every group makes different experiences in this institution. In an interview, Malcolm Bradbury explained some of the tensions that lay behind the History Man. Within this novel, he wanted to deal with some ironic processes of human behaviour. Therefore, the author gives his characters some important traits. The University of Watermouth is one of the new universities because it was founded after the war. This institution is an invention of the author. The main character is a lecturer of sociology, Doctor Howard Kirk. He does not want to teach history as it was; he just wants to make history after his own radical opinion. His aim is to revolutionize teaching, and that is why his seminars are the means to an end for his political self-realization. Referring to the title of the book, Howard Kirk, as the History Man, influences the students not only in their view about the university but also in their opinion about politics. That is why there are some advocates of his teaching methods but also some opponents. The man influences some students so enormously that he is responsible for their opinion about the state of academia. This can be proved on the example of Felicity Phee, a student of Howard. Two girls who also study at the University of watermouth and george carmody furthermore doctor kirk is characterized in the relationships to those people indirectly he is shown in different parts but he is always just interested in his own aims and not in the needs of other people this book offers a new approach to the genre of the campus novel through a critical analysis of eleven novels aristi trendel argues that the specificity and complexity of the pedagogic rapport between professor and student calls for a new genre the master disciple novel after the 1980s the professor student relationship was highly scrutinized and politicized making the master disciple novel essential to critical theorists and educators furthermore the master disciple novel broadens the scope of the campus novel as the master pupil rapport can develop beyond the halls of academia though some of the novels analyzed in this book have been thoroughly discussed before trendel reads them through the lens of the pedagogic rapport and in constant dialogue with a broad range of themes such as gender sexuality and power the book will be important for academics students and all who are interested in the bond between teacher and student this collection offers examinations of the concept of the american dream across a broad and diverse range of works the analytical methods utilized by the authors who are all clearly extremely knowledgeable experts in their fields are as unique as the content they examine is varied each chapter offers innovative insights which while founded on literary critique transcend the field of literature and touch upon issues related to economics education gender immigration psychology race and religion to name but a few this series gives readers accessible and informative introductions to 30 of the most popular most acclaimed and most influential contemporary novels each title includes a biography of the novelist and a full length study of the novel this second edition of the american college novel cites and describes 648 novels that are set at american colleges and universities from nathaniel hawthorne s fanshawe bowdoin college 1828 to william hart s never fade away university of california 2002 this revised and updated edition contains 225 new entries most new novels published since 1981 the annotations provide information about the novels plots settings and central characters as well as brief biographies of the authors the bibliography is divided into two sections student centered and staff centered novels both cited in chronological order by publication year a starter list of 50 american college novels is campus fictions argues that the academic novel balances utopian and regressive tendencies reinforcing the crises we face in higher learning while simultaneously signposting hope for a worn institution whether a bestseller such as erich segal s romance love story 1970 or wonkier fare such as don delillo s white noise 1985 the academic novel mystifies the academy not only to a wide public but also worse to readers who might describe themselves as sympathetic to higher learning the book takes an eclectic approach to the academic novel with chapters discussing for example the genre s rampant anti intellectualism and its work refusals studying novels such as ishmael reed s japanese by spring 1993 and julie schumacher s dear committee members 2014 the book is also accompanied by the directory of the american campus novel file which tracks the genre by year by setting and by other datapoints that readers might make use of responding directly to jeffrey williams the renowned scholar of critical university studies who implores faculty to teach the university the book s conclusion describes strategies for putting these novels into circulation in the classroom through this breadth campus fictions establishes the importance of maintaining hope in the field of critical university studies which tends toward apocalypticism and perhaps therefore toward disengagement lecturers in this kind of novel is an important feature those two groups constitute the social system of the university and build up the story because every group makes different experiences in this institution in an interview malcolm bradbury explained some of the tensions that lay behind the history man within this novel he wanted to deal with some ironic processes of human behaviour therefore the author gives his characters some important trades the university of watermouth is one of the new universities because it was found after the war this institution is an invention of the author the main character is a lecturer of sociology doctor howard kirk he does not want to teach history as it was he just wants to make history after his own radical opinion his aim is to revolutionize teaching and that is why his seminars are the means to an end for his political self realization referring to the title of the book howard kirk as the history man influences the students not only in their view about the university but also in their opinion about politics that is why there are some advocates of his teaching methods but also some opponents the man influences some students so enormously that he is responsible for their opinion about the state of academia this can be proved on the example of felicity phee a student of howard two girls who also study at the university of watermouth and george carmody furthermore doctor kirk is characterized in the relationships to those people indirectly he is shown in different parts but he is always just interested in his own aims and not in the needs of other people this book offers a new approach to the genre of the campus novel through a critical analysis of eleven novels aristi trendel argues that the specificity and complexity of the pedagogic rapport between professor and student calls for a new genre the master disciple novel after the 1980s the professor student relationship was highly scrutinized and politicized making the master disciple novel essential to critical theorists and educators furthermore the master disciple novel broadens the scope of the campus novel as the master pupil rapport can develop beyond the halls of academia though some of the novels analyzed in this book have been thoroughly discussed before trendel reads them through the lens of the pedagogic rapport and in constant dialogue with a broad range of themes such as gender sexuality and power the book will be important for academics students and all who are interested in the bond between teacher and student
