a sweeping history of linguistic and colonial encounter in the early americas anchored by the unlikely story of how boston s most famous puritan came to write the first spanish language publication in the english new world the boston minister cotton mather was the first english colonial to refer to himself as an american he was also the first to author a spanish language publication la fe del christiano the faith of the christian a protestant tract intended to evangelize readers across the spanish americas kirsten silva gruesz explores the conditions that produced la fe del christiano from the intimate story of the spanish indian servants in mather's household to the fragile business of printing and bookselling to the fraught overlaps of race ethnicity and language that remain foundational to ideas of latina o x belonging in the united states today mather s spanish project exemplifies new england s entanglement within a partially spanish catholic largely indigenous new world british americans viewed spanish not only as a set of linguistic practices but also as the hallmark of a rival empire and a nascent racial ethnic category guided by mather s tract gruesz explores english settlers turbulent contacts with the people they called spanish indians as well as with black and local native peoples tracing colonial encounters from boston to mexico florida and the caribbean she argues that language learning was intimately tied with the formation of new peoples even as spanish has become the de facto second language of the united states the story of la fe del christiano remains timely and illuminating locating the roots of latinidad in the colonial system of the early americas cotton mather s spanish lessons reinvents our understanding of a key colonial intellectual revealing notions about language and the construction of race that endure to this day bringing thinking from the arts and digital humanities into dialogue with one another this book investigates what it means to be alive in a world that is structured by technology the media and an ever expanding sense of a global community in this unique time in our history when we are bombarded by signs and symbols and constantly connected into gadgets apps and networks it has become increasingly difficult to navigate what has been dubbed a post truth world critiques taken from post colonial studies and neoanimism help challenge the paranoia that has become endemic and indeed symptomatic to global realities we are now witnessing this pertains not only to the ecological degradation of the planet but also to the lingering remnants of eurocentrism and racism that have taken the forms of nationalism and fascism as a guide an updated version of what michel foucault called an arts of existence may help us sail in these treacherous and confusing waters diving into post structuralist french theory through american feminism and emerging out of media studies this book argues for an ethical and aesthetic form of self fashioning that runs counter to processes subjection and mediatization this craft of life as plato called it is a space of disjunction and liberation between subjectivity and other where something new and different has the potential to emerge and mould to our likeness
