Repertory of patent inventions and other discoveries and improvements in arts, manufactures and agriculture 1847 in non democratic regimes around the world non state organizations provide millions of citizens with medical care schooling childrearing and other critical social services why would any authoritarian countenance this type of activism under what conditions does the private provision of social services generate political mobilization and in those cases what linkage does the provision of social services forge between the provider and recipient in winning hearts and votes steven brooke argues that authoritarians often seek to manage moments of economic crisis by offloading social welfare responsibilities to non state providers but providers who serve poorer citizens motivated by either charity of clientelism will be constrained in their ability to mobilize voters because the poor depend on the state for many different goods organizations that serve paying customers in contrast may produce high quality consistent and effective services this type of provision generates powerful reputation based linkages with a middle class constituency more likely to support the provider on election day brooke backs up his novel argument with an in depth examination of the egyptian muslim brotherhood the archetypal organization that combines social service provision with electoral success with a fascinating array of historical qualitative spatial and experimental data he traces the brotherhood s provision of medical services from its origins in the 1970s through its maturation under the authoritarian regime of hosni mubarak to its apogee during the country s brief democratic interlude 2011 2013 in addition to generating new insights into authoritarian regimes party voter linkages and clientelism and the relationship between political parties and social movements winning hearts and votes details the history operations and political effects of the muslim brotherhood s much discussed but little understood social service network
