Alexander Schieffer and Ronnie Lessem introduce a groundbreaking development framework and process to address the most burning issues that humanity faces while conventional top-down outside-in development has reached a cul de sac. A new integral form of development is emerging around the world. Integral development uniquely articulates this emergent approach and invites us to fully participate in this process. The integral approach has been researched and framed over decades of in-depth experience in transformative development, education, and practice all over the world. It uniquely combines four mutually reinforcing perspectives: nature and community, culture and spirituality, science systems and technology, and enterprise and economics. Conventional development theory and practice has prioritized the latter two perspectives, neglecting the former two. This has caused massive imbalances in today's world. The four interconnected perspectives allow for a transformative and integrated engagement with core development issues in a way that is locally relevant and globally resonant throughout. The practical impact of integral development is brought to life through highly innovative cases from around the globe, drawing on the authors' first-hand experience. This makes the book a living demonstration of the power of this pioneering approach. Integral development shows how individual, organizational, and societal developments need to be interconnected to release a society's full potential. It shifts the responsibility for large-scale development from often distant experts and organizations to each individual, community, enterprise, and institution within the society. It is essential reading and a call to action for everyone concerned with the current state of local and global development.

This book is among the first to theoretically and empirically examine what and how western expatriate managers learn and develop from their international assignments in China. The book draws on literature associated with expatriate studies, experiential learning theory, and knowledge acquisition to develop an expatriate learning process model. Following on from this, the study then examines expatriate learning outcomes from four perspectives: learning style, transition, adaptive flexibility, global mind sets, and managerial tacit knowledge. It enhances understanding of the cultural differences between western countries and China, as well as the kinds of learning strategies successful expatriates adopt in order to quickly adapt to intercultural business contexts. This book will appeal to international business practitioners and research fellows who are interested in international human resource management.
