for john freeman literary critic essayist editor poet and one of the preeminent book people of our time dave eggers it is a rare moment when words are not enough but in the wake of the election of 2016 words felt useless even indulgent action was the only reasonable response he took to the streets in protest and the sense of community and collective conviction felt right but the assaults continued on citizens rights and long held compacts on the core principles of our culture and civilisation and on our language itself words seemed to be losing the meanings they once had and freeman was compelled to return to their defence the result is his dictionary of the undoing from a to z agitate to zygote freeman assembled the words that felt most essential most potent and began to build a case for their renewed power and authority each word building on the last the message that emerged was not to retreat behind books but to emphatically engage in the public sphere to redefine what it means to be a literary citizen with an afterword by valeria luiselli dictionary of the undoing is a necessary resounding cri de coeur in defense of language meaning and our ability to imagine describe and build a better world undoing slavery excavates cultural political medical and legal history to understand the abolitionist focus on the body on its own terms motivated by their conviction that the physical form of the human body was universal and faced with the growing racism of eighteenth and nineteenth century science abolitionists in north america and britain focused on undoing slavery s harm to the bodies of the enslaved their pragmatic focus on restoring the bodily integrity and wellbeing of enslaved people threw up many unexpected challenges this book explores those challenges slavery exploited the bodies of men and women differently enslaved women needed to be acknowledged as mothers rather than as reproducers of slave property and enslaved men needed to claim full adult personhood without triggering white fears about their access to male privilege slavery s undoing became more fraught by the 1850s moreover as federal fugitive slave law and racist medicine converged the reach of the federal government across the borders of free states and theories about innate racial difference collapsed the distinctions between enslaved and emancipated people of african descent making militant action necessary escaping to so called free jurisdictions refugees from slavery demonstrated that a person could leave the life of slavery behind but leaving behind the enslaved body the fleshy archive of trauma and injury proved impossible bodies damaged by slavery needed urgent physical care as well as access to medical knowledge untainted by racist science as the campaign to end slavery revealed legal rights alone while necessary were not sufficient either to protect or heal the bodies of african descended people from the consequences of slavery and racism does geography affect our sense of self how are social characteristics mapped out on the ground and is there any authentic sense of place now or are we increasingly placeless concentrating on the period between the end of the second world war and the end of the century this reader argues that there is a reciprocal relationship between the constitution of places and people what it means to be a man or a woman to have a nationality and a sense of place has been transformed and reinvented as our view of the world has changed the present is perceived as a time of fear a period in which all that is solid seems to melt into air while the 1950s are a site of nostalgia a period of clarity and certainty a time when people know their place bringing together an interdisciplinary collection of articles for social and cultural geographers this reader critically examines the argument that the close associations of the 1950s between place the home the community and the nation state and the social divisions gender class and nationality are breaking down in the 1990s drawing out the oppositional movements in each decade it seeks to show how the supposed stability of one and the mobility of the other are exaggerated
