Discussion guides are a tool used in user research to help explore a range of topics with participants. They are designed to be flexible and open-ended, allowing the researcher to follow up on interesting points raised by the participant. Discussion guides can be used in a variety of ways, including one-to-one interviews, focus groups, and moderated usability tests. They can also be used to explore specific topics in more depth, such as user needs, attitudes, and behaviors. Discussion guides are a valuable tool for researchers looking to gain a deeper understanding of their users and their needs.
