Justification as Ignorance

2021-03-09

justification as ignorance offers an original account of epistemic justification as both non factive and luminous vindicating core internalist intuitions without construing justification as an internal condition knowable by reflection alone sven rosenkranz conceives of justification in its doxastic and propositional varieties as a kind of epistemic possibility of knowing and of being in a position to know his account contrasts with recent alternative views that characterize justification in terms of the metaphysical possibility of knowing instead he develops a suitable non normal multi modal epistemic logic for knowledge and being in a position to know that respects the finding that these notions create hyperintensional contexts he also defends his conception of justification against well known anti luminosity arguments shows that the account allows for fruitful applications and principled solutions to the lottery and preface paradoxes and provides a metaphysics of justification and its varying degrees of strength that is compatible with core assumptions of the knowledge first approach and disjunctivist conceptions of mental states autonomous cars drones and electronic surveillance systems are examples of technologies that raise serious ethical issues in this analytic investigation martin peterson articulates and defends five moral principles for addressing ethical issues related to new and existing technologies the cost benefit principle the precautionary principle the sustainability principle the autonomy principle and the fairness principle it is primarily the method developed by peterson for articulating and analyzing the five principles that is novel he argues that geometric concepts such as points lines and planes can be put to work for clarifying the structure and scope of these and other moral principles this geometric account is based on the aristotelian dictum that like cases should be treated alike meaning that the degree of similarity between different cases can be represented as a distance in moral space the more similar a pair of cases are from a moral point of view the closer is their location in moral space a case that lies closer in moral space to a paradigm case for some principle p than to any paradigm for any other principle should be analyzed by applying principle p the book also presents empirical results from a series of experimental studies in which experts philosophers and laypeople engineering students have been asked to apply the geometric method to fifteen real world cases the empirical findings indicate that experts and laypeople do in fact apply geometrically construed moral principles in roughly but not exactly the manner advocates of the geometric method believe they ought to be applied
