transcreation is now gaining momentum among translation scholars in broader areas of application going beyond the early focus of promotional and advertising products where it was initially practised in the specific context of this volume transcreation is discussed in relation to a variety of textual and visual genres that range from poetry prose theatre film and television to tourism and highly specialised legal texts this book is an edited collection of papers dealing with some of the main issues in audiovisual translation avt today as the title indicates it proposes to take stock of where the discipline stands and to speak of the opportunities and challenges that an ever changing environment poses to those involved in the field whether in teaching researching or working professionally within the industry the selection of papers provides a detailed overview of the multidisciplinary richness that characterises avt by covering topics related to culture linguistics and technology among others in various thematic and geographical contexts all the main domains of avt are explored subtitling dubbing surtitling accessibility to the media and new directions are highlighted showing how audiovisual translation is moving beyond its traditional settings this volume brings together work by both well known scholars and emerging researchers in the various areas of language for specific purposes lsp such as political legal medical and business discourse the volume is divided into three parts in order to align rather than separate three different but related aspects of lsp namely translation linguistic research and domain specific communication on the web underlying all the contributions here is the growing awareness of the ever increasing multiformity of specialised communication and the ever wider social implications of the communicative situations in which it is embedded especially where it involves the need to move across languages cultures and modes as in translation and interpreting the contributions consistently bear witness to the need to review received notions pose new questions and explore fresh perspectives the picture that emerges is one of extreme complexity in which researchers into specifically linguistic aspects of lps and their translation across languages and media declare their awareness of the pressing need to come to terms with a wide range of social pragmatic intercultural and political factors above and beyond socio technical knowledge of the domains under investigation translation is a phenomenon that affects us all on a daily basis the more so now that dissemination of information is greatly enhanced by modern technology however there are no strict regulations on who can become a translator and what qualifications are required the contributors to this volume strive to find out whether translators are taught self taught or trained what the teaching or training programmes are like and how they can be improved this is a companion volume to teaching translation and interpreting challenges and practices edited by Łukasz Bogucki cambridge scholars publishing 2010 it contains papers delivered at two international conferences devoted to teaching translation and interpreting organised in Łódź poland as well as invited contributions the authors are translation and interpreting scholars and teachers from leading polish and ukrainian universities besides providing a thorough overview of advances in the concept of identity in translation studies the book brings together a variety of approaches to identity as seen through the prism of translation individual

chapters are united by the topic and their predominantly cultural approach but they also supply dynamic impulses for the reader since their methodologies level of abstraction and subject matter differ the theoretical impulses brought together here include a call for the ecology of translational attention a proposal of transcultural and farcical translation and a rethinking of bourdieu's habitus in terms of františek miko's experiential complex the book also offers first hand insights into such topics as post communist translation practices provides sociological insights into the role politics played during state socialism in the creation of fields of translated fiction and the way imported fiction was able to subvert the intentions of the state gives evidence of the struggles of small locales trying to be recognised through their literature and draws links between local theory and more widely known concepts this collection addresses the complex process by which translation and other forms of rewriting have contributed to canon formation revision destabilization and dismantlement through the play between version and subversion which is inherent to any form of rewriting these essays focusing on translations since the sixteenth century down to the present day stress the role of translation and adaptation as potentially transformative mediations capable of shaping and undermining identities such manipulation is deeply ambivalent since it can be used as a means of disseminating the ideology of oppressive regimes at the expense of the source text but it can also serve to garner attention to marginalised texts this tense interplay between political social and aesthetic purposes almost inevitably generates discontents which may turn out to be the outcome of translation in general however discontent is a relational concept depending on where one stands in the field of competing positions that is the canon this is the inaugural edition of english in china today at the harbin institute of technology one of china's ivy league universities china currently has more than 2 400 public private and joint venture colleges and universities and almost every one publishes a journal in chinese no chinese college or university will accept or publish anything in any language other than chinese the instant journal now a book series is a first of its kind limited to scholars from one chinese ivy league university and provides a platform for chinese scholars to share their ideas with the global community in the common lingua franca english this is the first chinese university journal published abroad about english in english english in china today at the harbin institute of technology provides accessible cutting edge reports on most aspects of the language including style usage dictionaries literary language plain english the internet english language teaching in china both as efl and esl call literature culture cross culture communications and translation its intended readership includes linguists journalists broadcasters writers publishers teachers advanced students of the language university administrators and others with a professional or personal interest in communication this journal and book series is unique in its opening up of china's scholarly works to the english speaking world this wide ranging collection brings together essays on a recent approach to translation known as transcreation together with new modes of translation such as fansubbing fandubbing and crowdsourcing transcreation has challenged the traditional structure of the translation market the agency and ethics of the discipline and encouraged new research in translation studies a debate has emerged around the two concepts of translation and transcreation mostly in terms of differences between the two practices and issues such as creativity abusive translation and appropriation mainly applied to commercial translation transcreation is now gaining momentum among translation scholars in broader areas of application going beyond the early focus of promotional and advertising products where it was initially practised in the specific context of this volume transcreation is discussed in relation to a variety of textual and visual genres that range from poetry prose theatre film and television to tourism and highly specialised legal texts this book investigates several aspects of translation including literary political legal and machine translation and it covers a diversity of languages including arabic english french and greek with the whole world becoming a global village translation has acquired a remarkable dynamicity that encapsulates time and space bridging gaps between cultures despite all geographical boundaries contributions to this collection cross various spaces including jordan greece egypt malaysia romania and the united arab emirates this volume provides researchers interested in translation studies with detailed insight into translation as a product and a process the pedagogical implications of some of the chapters are expected to trigger future work on translators training in all types of translation the volume of economic business financial and institutional translation increases daily governments strive to produce plain and accessible information institutions and agencies operate in more than one language multinationals produce documents in multiple languages to expand their services worldwide and large businesses and smes also have to adopt a multilingual approach for accessing new markets in new countries translation and interpreting training institutions are aware of the increasing need for training in this area this awareness is evident in their curricula which include subjects related to these areas of activity trainers and researchers are increasingly interested in knowing and researching the intricacies and aspects of this type of translation this peer reviewed publication resulting from icebfit 2016 echoes the voices of translation practitioners researchers and teachers as well as other parties gathered to discuss new issues in institutional translation and business finance and accounting translation as well as in a larger sense specialized translation this collection of essays explores the reception of classics and translation from modern languages as two different yet synergic ways of engaging with literary canons and established traditions in 20th century italy these two areas complement each other and equally contribute to shape several kinds of identities authorial literary national and cultural foregrounding the transnational aspects of key concepts such as poetics literary voice canon and tradition the book is intended for scholars and students of italian literature and culture classical reception and translation studies with its two shifting focuses on forms of classical tradition and forms of literary translation the volume brings to the fore new configurations of 20th century literature culture and thought this volume offers a selection of issues currently encountered by scholars working within the broadly understood discipline of translation studies the contributions here discuss topical and recurrent issues which have long been at the forefront of this discipline such as phraseology corpora quality of interpreting translator training censorship style proper names and receptor oriented translation in addition they also deal with relatively recent developments such as humour and multimodality in audiovisual translation and those problems rarely conclusively addressed in the context of translation namely impoliteness and paratexts bringing together authors from eight countries namely the uk spain germany austria poland italy the usa and new zealand the volume offers research into translation from a variety of methodological solutions and conducted across eight languages english spanish catalan polish german italian chinese and greek despite the diversity of themes presented the main research areas emerging from all the contributions fall into four thematic groups 1 lexicological issues and corpora in translation studies 2 quality and translator training 3 audiovisual translation and 4 literary translation this book presents and comments on four short works of japanese literature by prominent writers of the early twentieth century including natsume sōseki and miyazawa kenji these are their first ever published english translations the book is designed to be used as a textbook for the translation of modern japanese literature another first each chapter introduces the writer and his work presents the original japanese text in its entirety and encourages students with advanced japanese to make their own translation of it before reading the author's translation that follows the detailed commentary section in each chapter focuses on two stylistic issues that characterise the source text and how the target text the translation has dealt with them before the chapter concludes with questions for further discussion and analysis how realistic is it to expect translation to render the world intelligible in a context shaped by different historical trajectories and experiences can we rely on human universals to translate through the unique and specific webs of meaning that languages represent if knowledge production is a kind of translation then it is fair to assume that the possibility of translation has largely rested on the idea that western experience is the repository of these human universals against the background of which different human experiences can be rendered intelligible the problem with this assumption however is that there are limits to western claims to universalism mainly because these claims were at the service of the desire to justify imperial expansion this book addresses issues arising from these claims to universalism in the process of producing knowledge about diverse african social realities it shows that the idea of knowledge production as translation can be usefully deployed to inquire into how knowledge of africa translates into an imperial attempt at changing local norms institutions and spiritual values translation in this sense is the normalization of meanings issuing from a local historical experience claiming to be universal the task of producing knowledge of african social realities cannot be adequately addressed without a prior critical engagement with how translation has come to shape our ways of rendering africa intelligible meaning in translation illusion of precision represents a collection of papers on fundamental and applied research on a wide range of linguistic topics including terminology standardisation and harmonisation the pragmatic semantic and grammatical aspects of meaning in translation and the translation of sacred legal poetic promotional and scientific and technical texts this volume offers a platform where scholars from various linguistic and cultural backgrounds studying a variety of subjects share their opinions on matters of utmost importance in the field of translation theory and practice this book will appeal to researchers working within the various fields of linguistics language planners terminologists practicing translators and students at all levels as well as anybody interested in the dynamic development of a language broadly conceived literature consists of aesthetic and cultural processes that can be thought of as forms of translation by the same token translation requires the sort of creative or interpretive understanding usually associated with literature literature as translation translation as literature explores a number of themes centred on this shared identity of literature and translation as creative acts of interpretation and understanding the metaphor or motif of translation is the touchstone of this volume which looks at how an expanded idea of translation sheds light not just on features of literary composition and reception but also on modes of intercultural communication at a time when the pressures of globalization threaten local cultures with extinction the theory of ethical translation that has emerged in this context which fosters the practice of preserving the foreignness of the text at the risk of its misunderstanding bears relevance beyond current debates about world literature to the framing of contemporary social issues by dominant discourses like medicine as one contributor's study of the growing autism rights movement reveals the systematizing imperatives of translation that forcibly assimilate the foreign to the familiar like the systematizing imperatives of globalization are resisted in acts of creative understanding in which the particular or different finds sanctuary the overlooked role that the foreign word plays in the discourses that constitute subjectivity and national culture comes to light across the variegated concerns of this volume contributions range from case studies of the emancipatory role translation has played in various historical and cultural contexts to the study of specific literary works that understand their own aesthetic processes and the interpretive and communicative processes of meaning more generally as forms of translation several contributors including the english translators of roberto bolaño and hans blumenberg were prompted in their reflections on the creative and interpretive process of translation by their own accomplished work as translators all are animated by the conviction that translation whether regarded as the creative act of understanding of one culture by another as the agent of political and social transformation as the source of new truths in foreign linguistic environments and not just the bearer of established ones or as the limit of conceptuality outlined in the silhouette of the untranslatable is a creative cultural force of the first importance this volume is dedicated to maurizio gotti in honour of his long and noteworthy academic career having served as full professor of history of the english language and of english language and translation for more than two decades at the university of bergamo italy gotti made significant contributions to multiple areas of study including specialized discourses lexicography history of the english language and language teaching this wide ranging collection brings together essays from these fields of enquiry authored by scholars whose academic input have interacted in various ways with ideas and topics introduced or extensively discussed by Gotti. The contributions are grouped into four theme-based sections representing the main threads in Gotti's research: from the macro area of specialised discourse to the more specific fields of research in academic and legal languages while the fourth section includes contributions dealing with the history of English language and is followed by a miscellaneous section which concludes the collection. Translation interpreting and translology face major challenges today as new technologies provide new ways of investigating our profession, analysing the process of performing these acts of linguistic mediation or the outcome of our work and even permit a fresh look at old data. However, aside from a certain improvement in terms of research possibilities, what else does the future hold for translation and interpreting? This volume proposes the label translation 4.0 suggesting that contemporary translation should actually be understood as programmatic as expressions such as industry 4.0 and internet 4.0 which are often used to refer to the increasing application of internet technology to facilitate communication between humans, machines and products. As the book shows, translation 4.0 is at least undergoing a process of formation if it is not already fully developed. The contributions here not only look into developments in translation and interpreting per se but also explore the consequences of digitalisation for research in this field. This volume offers a selection of revised versions of the papers presented at the 7th International IDEA Conference held at Pamukkale University in Denizli, Turkey, organised by the Association of English Language and Literary Studies in Turkey. The contributions to this book offer a wide range of research from scholars on a variety of topics in English literature including Shakespearean studies, Victorian colonial and postcolonial literature, poetry and drama studies. The volume also includes a number of informative research articles on comparative and translation studies which will offer assistance to young scholars in their academic studies. In addition to acting as a guide to young academics, the book will also function as a fruitful reference book in a wide range of English literary studies. The book offers guidance on the most effective strategies used in translating different text types. It is an accessible course book for students and practitioners of Arabic-English/Arabic translation. It incorporates both theory and application and as such will be invaluable to students of translation based on text types. It features a variety of translation key concepts including register and genre. It is the result of fruitful cooperation among different translation scholars. It will serve to help bilingual speakers become familiar with translation techniques and develop practical translation skills to the same standard as that expected of a university graduate. Divided into six parts, the book covers many various text types from legal to scientific and medical and from media and political to technical texts. This volume narrows a huge gap in regard to Steinbeck translations in Eastern Europe, here considered in terms of the political division between Western Europe and the Soviet-dominated East as the only book of its kind and although intended for both literature scholars and the broader arts community, it makes an important contribution to Steinbeck and American literature studies and is useful for scholars of the languages.

discussed here although steinbeck is regarded as an american writer of high repute his appeal and influence extend far beyond the borders of north america as documented here he was particularly popular in eastern europe where he inadvertently served political purposes evaluated through an ideological lens the sole value of his works was seen to reside in their utility to oppressive political regimes even works that clearly showed steinbeck venturing into new topics and forms could not escape an ideological burden whereas several others that lacked social necessity and documentary integrity were unjustifiably marginalised or consigned to oblivion as this study also shows only recently following the fall of totalitarian rule have steinbeck s works started to be approached from the various angles of contemporary criticism the acknowledgement that there is much more to recommend in his books than that which was praised by those who blinded by their commitment or because of imposed limitations on expectations showed no appreciation for the variety and subtlety of steinbeck s writing explains the recent renaissance of interest in the whole of steinbeck s oeuvre indeed viewed without preconceived ideas and accepted for what they are it is impossible not to respond to steinbeck s exploration of issues of freedom individual choice and relationships and not to notice that he was much more than merely a proletarian writer the present volume demonstrates the multifaceted potential of relevance theory which for more than two decades now has been inspiring studies of the relationship between human communication and cognition in the mind and across minds reflects the main strands of relevance theoretic research by expanding evaluating and revising the researchers ideas in a collection of papers by an international array of scholars the papers explore various aspects of communication including such issues as non literal meaning with the focus on irony and metaphor the construction of ad hoc concepts the conceptual procedural meaning distinction metarepresentation context and politeness as well as test the applicability of relevance theory to the domain of translation a set of readings on varied linguistic and sociocultural phenomena this book will be a valuable resource for scholars and students investigating meaning in natural language and an insightful reference for those interested in relevance theoretic pragmatics or pragmatics in general semantics sociolinguistics and translation studies ewa wałaszewska marta kisielewska krysiuk and agnieszka piskorska work at the institute of english studies university of warsaw as assistant professors they pursue their individual research connected with relevance theory and jointly organise a biennial conference interpreting for relevance discourse and translation this book is an edited collection of papers dealing with some of the main issues in audiovisual translation avt today as the title indicates it proposes to take stock of where the discipline stands and to speak of the opportunities and challenges that an ever changing environment poses to those involved in the field whether in teaching researching or working professionally within the industry the selection of papers provides a detailed overview of the multidisciplinary richness that ch this book examines the occurrence of manipulation in the translation of british and american press articles into polish for forum przegląd prasy Światowej magazine in the people s republic of poland under preventive censorship the existence of

source text st manipulation in translation is discovered through comparative analyses of sts and target texts tts the text analyses investigate topics editorial features translation techniques and the presence of newspeak characteristics this study shows the existence of methods manipulating the sts within all analytical areas chosen in order to create a positive view of the communist authorities activities and promote an optimistic image of the political economic and social situation in the country it offers a wide range of theory and practice concerning the specialized language of politics and propaganda translation theories strategies and techniques and represents a good source of knowledge and practice for both novice translators and professionals this is the inaugural edition of english in china today at the harbin institute of technology one of chinas ivy league universities themes places characters and voices of elizabeth jolley s mr scobie s riddle are explored in detail in this monograph which provides different narratological and translational analyses of the novel as well as an academic translation into italian considering the challenges and issues posited by a literary work s translation helps to shed light on the original work itself in this manner the translation is to be seen as a further analytical instrument to gain insight into the original novel the purpose of this work is to obtain a deeper understanding of the complicated microcosm created by jolley in the nursing home of st christopher and st jude the typically australian themes of migration isolation place and displacement the australian culture specific elements the ensemble of curious characters and their entertaining voices this book strives to preserve the above elements in translation as the expression of something other a different culture and to take italian readers on a journey to the australia depicted in mr scobie s riddle so that jolley s characters voices can echo in the italian language bringing together disciplines such as news translation media studies linguistics and financial discourse this book addresses the issue of english greek idiom translation in the news press it adopts a novel idiom typology which draws its main concepts from psychology and gives a detailed description of the idiom translation strategies employed in the greek financial press more specifically this book explores the syntactic semantic and pragmatic changes that idioms undergo when they are translated and proposes possible parameters that license a particular idiom translation strategy to be used in preference to another it is suggested that the four major tendencies dominant in idiom translation namely idiom adherence literalization deletion and compensation are determined by syntactic semantic pragmatic cognitive and textual parameters on these grounds a new idiom translation model is presented where it is assumed that idiom translation is genre sensitive thus pointing to the context sensitive nature of idiom translation expected to influence the translation quality of genres the dancer and the dance is a collection of thirteen essays in translation studies unlike many similar collections that have appeared in the past decades it is the product of theory integrated with practice in it the authors have steered clear of theorizing in a vacuum making sure that their findings tally with what actually happens in translation there is no attempt at putting forward hypotheses based on mere speculation as translation theorists and or translators whose specialties cover translation studies linguistics cultural studies computer aided translation chinese literature english literature comparative literature and creative writing the thirteen authors have taken up the challenge of unravelling the mystery of what in i a richards s words may very probably be the most complex type of event yet produced in the evolution of the cosmos impossible as the task may have seemed they have all succeeded each in his her own way in tracing out many warp and weft threads as well as hitherto undiscovered patterns in the vast gorgeous and mysterious tapestry woven by god after babel this book is aimed primarily at undergraduate and postgraduate students of translation and contrastive linguistics across the world as well as their instructors it does not confine itself to showing the differences between arabic and english in terms of traditional grammar alone but gently extends to the discussion of such issues as functional grammar syntax cohesion semantics pragmatics cognitive linguistics stylistics text typology translation procedures and to a certain degree translation theories it will serve to develop a professional translation competence in all essential areas in students and trainees by providing a suitably wide range of bidirectional practice materials for them and their teachers such competence will be developed from the basis of a contrastive study of arabic and english and will embrace not just contrasting grammar but also such matters as awareness of collocations stylistics and cohesive devices and the identification of text types

Where Theory and Practice Meet 2016-08-17 where theory and practice meet is a collection of nineteen papers in translation studies unlike many similar books published in recent decades which are mostly non translation oriented veering to issues with little or no relevance to translation this book focuses on the translation process on theory formulation with reference to actual translation on getting to grips with translation problems and on explaining translation in language which can be understood by the general reader perceptive and wide ranging the book covers language pairs that include chinese english french german italian spanish latin and classical greek and discusses among other things translations of dante s la divina commedia translations of shakespeare s hamlet goethe s prometheus as a case of untranslatability the challenge of translating garcilaso de la vega s primera Égloga into chinese john minford s translation of martial arts fiction and lin shu s translation of alexandre dumas s la dame aux camélias

Literature as Translation 2014 broadly conceived literature consists of aesthetic and cultural processes that can be thought of as forms of translation by the same token translation requires the sort of creative or interpretive understanding usually associated with literature this book explores a number of themes centred on this shared identity of literature and translation as creative acts of interpretation and understanding

Media Translation 2012-04-25 this book deals with a specific type of translation that has been the subject of several books in arabic namely media translation which has been gaining prominence lately it is divided into two sections the first deals with the history importance role the major theories and types of translation the second offers some applications in arabic and english for the benefit of those working in the field of media translation the book seeks to help those interested in studying the science and history of translation and those wishing to acquire skills for this profession and engage in it after achieving proficiency in the two languages the target language and the source language the book hopes to fill a void in the arabic library especially in the field of media translation

Teaching Translation and Interpreting 2012 translation is a phenomenon that affects us all on a daily basis the more so now that dissemination of information is greatly enhanced by modern technology however there are no strict regulations on who can become a translator and what qualifications are required the contributors to this volume strive to find out whether translators are taught self taught or trained what the teaching or training programmes are like and how they can be improved this is a companion volume to teaching translation and interpreting challenges and practices edited by Å ukasz bogucki cambridge scholars publishing 2010 it contains papers delivered at two international conferences devoted to teaching translation and interpreting organised in Å Å3dÅ poland as well as invited contributions the authors are translation and interpreting scholars and teachers from leading polish and ukrainian universities

Didactics of Translation 2016-12-14 this book derives empirical evidence for the didactic value of translating texts in context through an experiment involving final year undergraduate students who study translation as a basic component of their curriculum a number of theoretical frameworks are invoked here most notably those of the discourse model elaborated by Hatim and Mason 1990 1997 and House's text analysis model 1997 furthermore the study conducted draws on Hatim's multi stage curriculum translation design 2000 consisting of various stages representing an increasing degree of evaluativeness and difficulty

Translation and Language Teaching 2019-06-04 drawing upon convergences between translation studies and foreign and second language L2 didactics that have emerged as a result of recent research this volume continues the dialogue between the two disciplines by allowing for epistemological two way traffic marrying established yet so far unrelated or under researched conceptual approaches and disseminating innovative scientific evidence from different continents a unique feature of the volume is the sub section presenting the most recent empirical studies in the development of linguistic and other professional competences for translators with suggestions for re defining translation curricula the contributors to this volume include representatives of various spheres including academics researchers and practitioners their underlying theoretical and empirical research is informed by multiple perspectives linguistics didactics and translation related this book shows how integrating insights from translation studies into language teaching and vice versa can effectively respond to the challenges of contemporary language and translator teaching and training

Achieving Consilience 2016-04-26 at master's level students in translation studies may choose to complete their course by compiling a dissertation by commentary such projects involve detailed discussions of the strategies and procedures that students opt for when translating a source text of their choice be it literary audiovisual or technical however the vast majority of these dissertations by commentary usually remain stored in university libraries achieving consilience translation theories and practice brings to the fore the theoretical and practical potential of these dissertations by commentary it demonstrates how theories in translation studies can be fruitfully consciously and systematically applied during the translation practice thus helping to transcend the received wisdom according to which theorists and practitioners share little common ground additionally the contributors to this volume evince their ability to apply a research driven approach to their analysis by comparing their work with official translations or other field related texts as such this essay collection will contribute to a better understanding of the translator's decision making process and will offer future students valuable guidelines regarding the procedure normally followed in completing a dissertation by commentary

Meaning in Translation 2016 this wide ranging collection brings together essays on a recent approach to translation known as transcreation together with new modes of translation such as fansubbing fandubbing and crowdsourcing transcreation has challenged the traditional structure of the translation market the agency and ethics of the discipline and encouraged new research in translation studies a debate has emerged around the two concepts of translation and transcreation mostly in terms of differences between the two practices and issues such as creativity abusive translation and appropriation mainly applied to commercial translation transcreation is now gaining momentum among translation scholars in broader areas of application going beyond the early focus of promotional and advertising products where it was initially practised in the specific context of this volume transcreation is discussed in relation to a variety of textual and visual genres that range from poetry prose theatre film and television to tourism and highly specialised legal texts

Language Across Languages 2015 besides providing a thorough overview of advances in the concept of identity in translation studies the book brings together a variety of approaches to identity as seen through the prism of translation individual chapters are united by the topic and their predominantly cultural approach but they also supply dynamic impulses for the reader since their methodologies level of abstraction and subject matter differ the theoretical impulses brought together here include a call for the ecology of translational attention a proposal of transcultural and farcical translation and a rethinking of bourdieu's habitus in terms of františek miko's experiential complex the book also offers first hand insights into such topics as post communist translation practices provides sociological insights into the role politics played during state socialism in the creation of fields of translated fiction and the way imported fiction was able to subvert the intentions of the state gives evidence of the struggles of small locales trying to be recognised through their literature and draws links between local theory and more widely known concepts

Teaching Translation and Interpreting 2012-12-21 this collection addresses the complex process by which translation and other forms of rewriting have contributed to canon formation revision destabilization and dismantlement through the play between version and subversion which is inherent to any form of rewriting these essays focusing on translations since the sixteenth century down to the present day stress the role of translation and adaptation as potentially transformative mediations capable of shaping and undermining identities such manipulation is deeply ambivalent since it can be used as a means of disseminating the ideology of oppressive regimes at the expense of the source text but it can also serve to garner attention to marginalised texts this tense interplay between political social and aesthetic purposes almost inevitably generates discontents which may turn out to be the outcome of translation in general however discontent is a relational concept depending on where one stands in the field of competing positions that is the canon

Business and Institutional Translation 2018-11-12 how realistic is it to expect translation to render the world intelligible in a context shaped by different historical trajectories and experiences can we rely on human universals to translate through the unique and specific webs of meaning that languages represent if knowledge production is a kind of translation then it is fair to assume that the possibility of translation has largely rested on the idea that western experience is the repository of these human universals against the background of which different human experiences can be rendered intelligible the problem with this assumption however is that there are limits to western claims to universalism mainly because these claims were at the service of the desire to justify imperial expansion this book addresses issues arising from these claims to universalism in the process of producing knowledge about diverse african social realities it shows that the idea of knowledge production as translation can be usefully deployed to inquire into how knowledge of africa translates into an imperial attempt at changing local norms institutions and spiritual values translation in this sense is the normalization of meanings issuing from a local historical experience claiming to be universal the task of producing knowledge of african social realities cannot be adequately addressed without a prior critical engagement with how translation has come to shape our ways of rendering africa intelligible

Echoing Voices in Italian Literature 2019-01-08 meaning in translation illusion of precision represents a collection of papers on fundamental and applied research on a wide range of linguistic topics including terminology standardisation and harmonisation the pragmatic semantic and grammatical aspects of meaning in translation and the translation of sacred legal poetic promotional and scientific and technical texts this volume offers a platform where scholars from various linguistic and cultural backgrounds studying a variety of subjects share their opinions on matters of utmost importance in the field of translation theory and practice this book will appeal to researchers working within the various fields of linguistics language planners terminologists practicing translators and students at all levels as well as anybody interested in the dynamic development of a language

Perspectives on Translation 2016-05-11 broadly conceived literature consists of aesthetic and cultural processes that can be thought of as forms of translation by the same token translation requires the sort of creative or interpretive understanding usually associated with literature literature as translation translation as literature explores a number of themes centred on this shared identity of literature and translation as creative acts of interpretation and understanding the metaphor or motif of translation is the touchstone of this volume which looks at how an expanded idea of translation sheds light not just on features of literary composition and reception but also on modes of intercultural communication at a time when the pressures of globalization threaten local cultures with extinction the theory of ethical translation that has emerged in this context which fosters the practice of preserving the foreignness of the text at the risk of its misunderstanding bears relevance beyond current debates about world literature to the framing of contemporary social issues by dominant discourses like medicine as one contributor s study of the growing autism rights movement reveals the systematizing imperatives of translation that forcibly assimilate the foreign to the familiar like the systematizing imperatives of globalization are resisted in acts of creative understanding in which the particular or different finds sanctuary the overlooked role that the foreign word plays in the discourses that constitute subjectivity and national culture comes to light across the variegated concerns of this volume contributions range from case studies of the emancipatory role translation has played in various historical and cultural contexts to the study of specific literary works that understand their own aesthetic processes and the interpretive and communicative processes of meaning more generally as forms of translation several contributors including the english translators of roberto bolaño and hans blumenberg were prompted in their reflections on the creative and interpretive process of translation by their own accomplished work as translators all are animated by the conviction that translation whether regarded as the creative act of understanding of one culture by another as the agent of political and social transformation as the source of new truths in foreign linguistic environments and not just the bearer of established ones or as the limit of conceptuality outlined in the silhouette of the untranslatable is a creative cultural force of the first importance

Translating Modern Japanese Literature 2019-09-12 this volume is dedicated to maurizio gotti in honour of his long and noteworthy academic career having served as full professor of history of the english language and of english language and translation for more than two decades at the university of bergamo italy gotti made significant contributions to multiple areas of study including specialized discourses lexicography history of the english language and language teaching this wide ranging collection brings together essays from these fields of enquiry authored by scholars whose academic input have interacted in various ways with ideas and topics introduced or extensively discussed by gotti the contributions are grouped into four theme based sections representing the main threads in gotti s research from the macro area of specialised discourse to the more specific fields of research in academic and legal languages while the fourth section includes contributions dealing with the history of english language and is followed by a miscellaneous section which concludes the collection

Translation Revisited 2019-01-17 translation interpreting and translatology face major challenges today as new technologies provide new ways of investigating our profession analysing the process of performing these acts of linguistic mediation or the outcome of our work and even permit a fresh look at old data however aside from a certain improvement in terms of research possibilities what else does the future hold for translation and interpreting this volume proposes the label translation 4 0 suggesting that contemporary translation should actually be understood as programmatic as expressions such as industry 4 0 and internet 4 0 which are often used to refer to the increasing application of internet technology to facilitate communication between humans machines and products as the book shows translation 4 0 is at least undergoing a process of formation if it is not already fully developed the contributions here not only look into developments in translation and interpreting per se but also explore the consequences of digitalisation for research in this field

Communicating English in Specialised Domains 2020-01-08 this volume narrows a huge gap in regard to steinbeck translations in eastern europe here considered in terms of the political division between western europe and the soviet dominated east as the only book of its kind and although intended for both literature scholars and the broader arts community it makes an important contribution to steinbeck and american literature studies and is useful for scholars of the languages discussed here although steinbeck is regarded as an american writer of high repute his appeal and influence extend far beyond the borders of north america as documented here he was particularly popular in eastern europe where he inadvertently served political purposes evaluated through an ideological lens the sole value of his works was seen to reside in their utility to oppressive political regimes even works that clearly showed steinbeck venturing into new topics and forms could not escape an ideological burden whereas several others that lacked social necessity and documentary integrity were unjustifiably marginalised or consigned to oblivion as this study also shows only recently following the fall of totalitarian rule have steinbeck s works started to be approached from the various angles of contemporary criticism the acknowledgement that there is much more to recommend in his books than that which was praised by those who blinded by their commitment or because of imposed limitations on expectations showed no appreciation for the variety and subtlety of steinbeck s writing explains the recent renaissance of interest in the whole of steinbeck s oeuvre indeed viewed without preconceived ideas and accepted for what they are it is impossible not to respond to steinbeck s exploration of issues of freedom individual choice and relationships and not to notice that he was much more than merely a proletarian writer

In the Mind and across Minds 2010-04-16 themes places characters and voices of elizabeth jolley s mr scobie s riddle are explored in detail in this monograph which provides different narratological and translational analyses of the novel as well as an academic translation into italian considering the challenges and issues posited by a literary work s translation helps to shed light on the original work itself in this manner the translation is to be seen as a further analytical instrument to gain insight into the original novel the purpose of this work is to obtain a deeper understanding of the complicated microcosm created by jolley in the nursing home of st christopher and st jude the typically australian themes of migration isolation place and displacement the australian culture specific elements the ensemble of curious characters and their entertaining voices this book strives to preserve the above elements in translation as the expression of something other a different culture and to take italian readers on a journey to the australia depicted in mr scobie s riddle so that jolley s characters voices can echo in the italian language

Audiovisual Translation 2015-06-18 bringing together disciplines such as news translation media studies linguistics and financial discourse this book addresses the issue of english greek idiom translation in the news press it adopts a novel idiom typology which draws its main concepts from psychology and gives a detailed description of the idiom translation strategies employed in the greek financial press more specifically this book explores the syntactic semantic and pragmatic changes that idioms undergo when they are translated and proposes possible parameters that license a particular idiom translation strategy to be used in preference to another it is suggested that the four major tendencies dominant in idiom translation namely idiom adherence literalization deletion and compensation are determined by syntactic semantic pragmatic cognitive and textual parameters on these grounds a new idiom translation model is presented where it is assumed that idiom translation is genre sensitive thus pointing to the context sensitive nature of idiom translation expected to influence the translation quality of genres

Manipulation in Translating British and American Press Articles in the People's Republic of Poland

2019-08-15 the dancer and the dance is a collection of thirteen essays in translation studies unlike many similar collections that have appeared in the past decades it is the product of theory integrated with practice in it the authors have steered clear of theorizing in a vacuum making sure that their findings tally with what actually happens in translation there is no attempt at putting forward hypotheses based on mere speculation as translation theorists and or translators whose specialties cover translation studies linguistics cultural studies computer aided translation chinese literature english literature comparative literature and creative writing the thirteen authors have taken up the challenge of unravelling the mystery of what in i a richards s words may very probably be the most complex type of event yet produced in the evolution of the cosmos impossible as the task may have seemed they have all succeeded each in his her own way in tracing out many warp and weft threads as well as hitherto undiscovered patterns in the vast gorgeous and mysterious tapestry woven by god after babel

English in China Today at the Harbin Institute of Technology 2012-11-01 this book is aimed primarily at undergraduate and postgraduate students of translation and contrastive linguistics across the world as well as their instructors it does not confine itself to showing the differences between arabic and english in terms of traditional grammar alone but gently extends to the discussion of such issues as functional grammar syntax cohesion semantics pragmatics cognitive linguistics stylistics text typology translation procedures and to a certain degree translation theories it will serve to develop a professional translation competence in all essential areas in students and trainees by providing a suitably wide range of bidirectional practice materials for them and their teachers such competence will be developed from the basis of a contrastive study of arabic and english and will embrace not just contrasting grammar but also such matters as awareness of collocations stylistics and cohesive devices and the identification of text types
