twelve fairy tales from a great geographic range mostly from across europe with two from north america and one from japan the tone of this story book is gentle and familiar but without shying away from the occasionally gruesome details that make fairytales so enticing for younger readers while many of the tropes are similar to the fairytales we are all familiar with from the grimm brothers with lots of events occurring in threes and forgotten younger siblings often turning out to have the wisdom kindness or bravery their older siblings lack these are a set of entirely different stories from around the world the collective imagination of the various fairy tale tellers must have been limitless to create such a wide range of these magical stories in the first of these stories the irish story yellow lily the hero is a cocky young prince who loves to gamble and is saved from a grisly fate by the eponymous yellow lily yellow lily is a heroine who doesn't mind using her wits to lash the hero when he needs it rather than a merely a meek story device this story also contains the great tongue twister yellow lily of loch lein try saying that with your mouth full each of the other stories are at least as fascinating such as the scandinavian tale the mysterious prince which starts like beauty and the beast and ends very differently or the canadian the goddess of light which reads like a cross between bluebeard and a creation myth princes princesses elves and giants all abound in these stories and the evil ones are guaranteed to get their comeuppance the greatest fairy tales of all time the 100 tales collected here throw open wide the gates to the realm of fairyland inside are princes and princesses giants and dwarfs heroes heroines simpletons rogues wizards witches ogres trolls elves magical artefacts and all manner of talking birds and beasts as g k chesterton has observed fairyland is a place where happiness hangs upon a single thread cinderella may have a dress woven on supernatural looms and blazing with unearthly brilliance but she must be back when the clock strikes twelve the king may invite fairies to the christening but he must invite all the fairies or frightful results will follow bluebeard s wife may open all doors but one a promise is broken to a cat and the whole world goes wrong a promise is broken to a yellow dwarf and the whole world goes wrong this is also a world of contradiction and disproportion where honesty may be a virtue but so is the ability to tell the most outrageous lies conceivable here the prize for treading on a cat's tail is a princess and the penalty for expressing gratitude to a goblin is a lifelong curse in compiling this anthology we have tried to include as many tale types as possible and as much of the varied landscape of the fairy world deserts icefields enchanted forests underwater kingdoms as we could fit in our principal sources are the great european collections of fairy tales and folk tales as compiled by jacob and wilhelm grimm peter asbjørnsen and jørgen møe hans christian andersen charles perrault joseph jacobs and alexander afanasyev but there are tales from further afield as well from asia africa and the middle east we have classified the tales thematically and spread them evenly across ten chapters 1 the classic characters heroes heroines and their foes 2 birds and beasts 3 little big 4 the ship of fools 5 quick minds and sharp wits 6 the royal court 7 into the world journeys quests and adventures 8 magic and witchcraft 9 extraordinary tales of extraordinary things 10 tales for winter we hope this structure will aid readers somewhat in their explorations at the same time we concur with w h auden who writes the way to read a fairy tale is to throw yourself in
