Salas Barbadillo and the New Novel of Rogues and Courtiers 1974

Salas Barbadillo's The New Novel of Rogues and Courtiers (1974) is a masterpiece of the Spanish New Novel. It is a complex, multi-layered work that explores the lives of a group of people in a society that is both corrupt and decadent. The novel is set in a world where power is concentrated in the hands of a few, and where the lives of the poor are a constant struggle. The author's use of language is highly stylized, and the narrative is filled with intricate details and a sense of mystery.

The Sunday Times bestseller, the unmissable new work from Ali Smith following the dazzling Man Booker shortlisted Seasonal Quartet. One day in post-Brexit, mid-pandemic Britain, artist Sandy Gray receives an unexpected phone call from university acquaintance Martina Pelf. Martina is calling Sandy to ask for help with a mysterious question she's been left with after she's spent half a day locked in a room by border control officials for no reason she can fathom. Curlew or curfew, you choose, and what's any of this got to do with the story of a young and talented blacksmith hounded from her trade and her home more than five hundred years ago? Ali Smith's novel takes wing, soaring between our atomised present and our medieval past in the hope we can open our locked-down homes and selves to all the other times, other species, other histories, other possibilities. An entertaining and expert portrayal of the world we live in, seen by the most beguiling and likeable of novelistic intelligences. Telegraph Companion Piece makes you look at the world afresh. For me, it turned a cold and depressing day into a bright one. New Statesman longlisted for the Gordon Burn Prize 2022. Longlisted for the Highland Book Prize 2022.

The postcolonial historical novel is the first systematic work to examine how the historical novel has been transformed by its appropriation in postcolonial writing. It proposes new ways to understand literary realism and explores how the relationship between history and fiction plays out in contemporary African and Australasian writing.

Greed, corruption, murder. New York in 1880 is a hell of a place to make your living. Nellie Bly arrives at age twenty-four in Manhattan, lacking connections and money but blessed with an abundance of courage and a skill for reportage. Within ten months, she lands two front-page stories on the country's most widely read newspaper. Joseph Pulitzer's New York World is so impressed that he assigns her to get to the bottom of a murder that has confounded the police: the untimely death of his friend Emma Lazarus, the controversial poet and activist. Her investigation leads to tense encounters with some of the most powerful and ruthless men of the time in an era where elected officials are bought and sold and where greed runs rampant on an unregulated Wall Street, outgunned and ignoring her contemptuous. All male colleagues, Bly has only two real allies: a doctor who uses scientific techniques to establish criminal behavior and a theater critic with unlimited access to underground New York. As the pieces fall into place, Bly uncovers layer after layer of corruption, getting closer to a dangerous core and to the truth.

The New Magdalen 1885

In an era of rampant Islamophobia, what do literary representations of Muslims and anti-Muslim bigotry tell us about changing concepts of cultural difference in Islamophobia and the novel? Peter Morey analyzes how recent works of fiction have framed and responded to the rise of anti-Muslim prejudice, showing how their portrayals of Muslims both reflect and refute the ideological preoccupations of media and politicians in the post-9/11 West. Islamophobia and the novel discusses novels embodying a range of positions from the avowedly secular to the religious and from texts that appear to underwrite Western assumptions of cultural superiority to those that recognize and critique neoimperial impulses. Morey offers nuanced readings of works by John Updike, Ian McEwan, Hanif Kureishi, Monica Ali, Mohsin Hamid, John Le Carré, Khaled Hosseini, Azar Nafisi, and other writers, emphasizing the demands of the literary marketplace for representations of Muslims. He explores how depictions of Muslim experience have challenged liberal assumptions regarding the novel's potential for empathy and its

is unique because it demonstrates the reciprocal relationship between the love letter and the romantic novel germaine de staël juiette récamier chateaubriand benjamin constant lady emma hamilton napoleon bonaparte and his brother lucien bonaparte were the authors and recipients of some of the most passionate love letters of this period they were also avid readers of the newly emerging genre of the romantic novel and many of them were also authors of such works where they projected their personal romances onto the characterization of their fictional heroes and heroines in addition these authors had lived through the recent french revolution and the terror imprisoned during the revolution or branded as émigrés upon their return to paris their mature adult lives were spent in the shadows of the napoleonic wars in which they shifted political loyalties as the specter of napoleon s powers grew from first consul to emperor of europe the looming threat of war ignited the depths of their passions and inspired their intellectual analysis of love happiness and suicide their evolving concept of love was a romantic all consuming passion which gripped the lovers in fatal embraces this book s analysis of their love letters and romantic novels reveals the emerging political landscape of the period through extended metaphors of love and patriotism
