of the children born of relationships between french men and african women from the time france colonized much of west africa towards the end of the nineteenth century until independence in 1960 set within the context of the history of miscegenation in colonial french west africa the study focuses upon the lives and identities of the resulting mixed race or métis population and their struggle to overcome the handicaps they faced in a racially divided society owen white has drawn a valuable evaluation of the impact and importance of french racial theories and offers a critical discussion of colonial policies in such areas as citizenship and education providing original insights into problems of identity in colonial society offers a new perspective on the making of colonial education and the history of modern schooling in india this book tells the extraordinary story of a village of peasants and miners who were slaves belonging to the king of spain and whose local patroness was a vision of the virgin it explores the ways the royal slaves assisted by the force of popular religion achieved a degree of freedom unprecedented in other colonial societies of the new world in this biography of the khoikhoi jan paerl 1761 1851 light is being shed on a new form of resistance against colonial domination in cape society it emphasizes khoikhoi colonial encounters and incorporates themes such as millenarian beliefs identities master servant relations indentured labour and the appropriation of mission christianity race power and social segmentation in colonial society 1987 studies guyanese society after slavery and specifically examines the area of social classes and ethnic groups it also focuses on the theoretical issues in the debate on pluralism versus stratification and provides a detailed interdisciplinary analysis of the process of structural change in a composite colonial society over a significantly long historical period over half a century in recent years race has fallen out of historiographical fashion being eclipsed by seemingly more benign terms such as culture ethnicity and difference this timely and highly readable collection of essays re energises the debate by carefully focusing our attention on local articulations of race and their intersections with colonialism and its aftermath in rethinking the racial moment essays on the colonial encounter alison holland and barbara brookes have produced a collection of studies that shift our historical understanding of colonialism in significant new directions their generous and exciting brief will ensure that the book has immediate appeal for multiple readers engaged in critical theory as well as those more specifically involved in australian and new zealand history collectively they offer new and invigorating approaches to understanding colonialism and cultural encounters in history via the interpretive not merely temporal frame of the moment primarily consists philosophy about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works this book examines the evolving representations of the colonial past from the mid 19th century up to decolonization in the 1960s and 70s the so called era of modern imperialism in post war history textbooks from across the world the aim of the book is to examine the evolving outlook of colonial representations in history education and the underpinning explanations for the specific outlook in different former colonizer and colonized countries to be found in collective memory popular historical culture social representations identity building processes and the state of historical knowledge within academia the approach of the book is novel and innovative in different ways first of all given the complexity of the research an original interdisciplinary approach has been implemented which brings together historians history educators and social psychologists to examine representations of colonialism in history education in different countries around the world while drawing on different theoretical frameworks secondly given the interest in the interplay between collective memory popular historical culture social representations and the state of historical knowledge within academia a diachronic approach is implemented examining the evolving representations of the colonial past and connecting them to developments within society at large and academia this will allow for a deeper understanding of the processes under examination thirdly studies from various corners of the world are included in the book more specifically the project includes research from three categories of countries former colonizer countries including england spain italy france portugal and belgium countries having been both colonized and colonizer chile and former colonized countries including zimbabwe malta and mozambique this selection allows pairing up the countries under review as former colonizing colonized ones for instance portugal mozambique united kingdom malta allowing for an in depth comparison between the countries involved before reaching the research core three introductory chapters outline three general issues the book starts with addressing the different approaches and epistemological underpinnings history and social psychology as academic disciplines hold in a second chapter evolutions within international academic colonial historiography are analyzed with a special focus on the recent development of new imperial history a third chapter analyses history textbooks as cultural tools and political means of transmitting historical knowledge and representations across generations the next ten chapters form the core of the book in which evolving representations of colonial history from mid 19th century until decolonization in the 1960s and 1970s are examined explained and reflected upon for the above mentioned countries this is done through a history textbook analysis in a diachronic perspective for some countries the analysis dates back to textbooks published after the second world war for other countries the focus will be more limited in time the research presented is done by historians and history educators as well as by social psychologists in a concluding chapter an overall overview is presented in which similarities and differences throughout the case studies are identified interpreted and reflected upon this book examines the history of the colonial conquest of a neglected region of angola from an alternative perspective dr clarence smith has used advances in marxist theory to develop a model of the early colonial period which differs greatly from the established historiography of african resistance although the main focus is on local socio economic structures one chapter places the region in the wider context of the political economy of the partition of africa with strong emphasis on the economic motivations of portugal a brief epilogue brings the story in outline to the end of portuguese colonialism the rest of the book analyses colonial society and african peasant societies in turn capitalist relations of production were generally predominant in local colonial society but slavery persisted into the 1910s and was followed by a system of forced labour this work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important and is part of the knowledge base of civilization as we know it this work is in the public domain in the united states of america and possibly other nations within the united states you may freely copy and
