so complete was the illusion that it was some time before it was dispelled it seemed to him he says that he saw christ as he would see any other man and that beneath his benignant gaze he was melted to tears and he wept aloud like a child on being aroused from this rapt vision he returned to his seat by the fireplace in the main room of the office and as he sat down by the fire he received what he describes as a mighty baptism of the holy ghost this was an experience for which he was not looking and of which he did not remember ever to have heard before it seemed to him as if there was a positive force like electricity entering and penetrating his whole system he wept aloud with joy and love and to use his own words literally bellowed out the unutterable gushings of his heart so overwhelming were these waves of feeling that he cried out lord i cannot bear any more i shall die if these continue this train of experiences was interrupted late in the evening by a visit from a member of the choir who was alarmed at finney s loud weeping and supposed that he was suffering from pain but was somewhat confused at finney s reply that he was not in pain but so happy that he could not live notwithstanding this exalted experience and these transports of joy finney retired to his bed without definite assurance in his own mind that his sins had been forgiven or that he had been fully accepted by god and he passed a nearly sleepless night but when he arose in the morning and the sun was pouring its clear rays into his room these became to him an emblem of the brighter light that had arisen upon his soul and there was a repetition of the scene of the previous evening he wept aloud for joy and in this second baptism received a gentle reproof for having doubted the readiness of god to have mercy upon him he now saw that the sweet relief from condemnation which had come to his mind at the supreme moment of decision upon the previous forenoon was closely connected with the divine act of justification and that the peace which he had since enjoyed was that which god had provided for sinners through the gracious sufferings of christ he felt that his sins were blotted out from god s book of remembrance and that by a divine act his guilt had been removed get more books at revivalpress.net excerpt from charles grandison finney memorial address delivered at
