this is the second volume of friedell s monumental a cultural history of the modern age a key figure in the flowering of viennese culture between the two world wars this three volume work is considered his masterpiece the centuries covered in this second volume mark the victory of the scientific mind in nature research language research politics economics war even morality poetry and religion all systems of thought produced in this century either begin with the scientific outlook as their foundation or regard it as their highest and final goal friedell claims three main streams pervade the eighteenth century enlightenment revolution and classicism in ordinary use by enlightenment we mean an extreme rationalistic tendency of which preliminary stages were noted in the seventeenth century the term classicism is well understood under the term revolution friedell includes all movements directed against what has been dominant and traditional the aims of such movements were remodeling the state and society banning all esthetic canons and dethronement of reason by sentiment all in the name of the return to nature the enlightenment tendency might be seen as laying the ground for an age of revolution the second volume continues friedell s dramatic history of the driving forces of the twentieth century in this major work blumenberg takes issue with karl löwith s well known thesis that the idea of progress is a secularized version of christian eschatology which promises a dramatic intervention that will consummate the history of the world from outside instead blumenberg argues the idea of progress always implies a process at work within history operating through an internal logic that ultimately expresses human choices and is legitimized by human self assertion by man s responsibility for his own fate if eugenics the science of eliminating kinds of undesirable human beings from the species record came to overdetermine the late 19th century in relation to disability the 20th century may be best characterized as managing the repercussions for variable human populations a cultural history of disability in the modern age provides an interdisciplinary overview of disability as an outpouring of professional political and representational efforts to fix correct eliminate preserve and even cultivate the value of cripple bodies this book pursues analyses of disability s deployment as a wellspring for an alternative ethics of living in and alongside the body different while simultaneously considering the varied social and material steven a riess is professor emeritus at northeastern illinois university usa volume 6 in the cultural history of sport set general editors wray vamplew mark dyreson and john mccllland the fourteenth century greek hesychast and controversialist gregory palamas has been so successfully cast as the other in western theological discourse that it can be difficult to gain a sympathetic hearing for him in the first part of this book norman russell traces the historical reception of palamite thought in orthodoxy and in the west and investigates how palamism was constructed in the early twentieth century by both western and eastern theologians principally martin jugie and john meyendorff for polemical or apologetic purposes russell argues that we need to go behind these ideological constructions in order to gain a true perception of the teaching of gregory palamas in his recent survey of palamite scholarship robert sinkewicz noted that it is now time to raise the larger questions the second part of the book attempts to do this following the contours of palamas thinking in three areas his relationship to tradition his philosophy and his theology russell shows that palamite thought when freed of misunderstanding and misrepresentation has the potential to enrich our understanding of divine human communion this study contributes to the changing paradigm of scholarship on palamas nudging it towards the point at which palamite thought can be used fruitfully by contemporary western and eastern theologians without the need to subscribe to what has been regarded as palamism in the 20th century many aspects of life became a matter of perception in the wake of the multiplication of media stylistic experimentation and the rise of multiculturalism life sped up as a result of new modes of transportation automobiles and airplanes and communication telephones and personal computers which emphasized the rapid movement of people and ideas the proliferation of synthetic products and simulated experiences from artificial flavors to video games in turn created heady virtual worlds of sensation this progressive mediation and acceleration of sensation along with the sensory and environmental pollution it often spawned also sparked various countertrends such as the back to nature movement the craft movement slow food and alternative medicine this volume shows how attending to the sensory dynamics of the modern age yields many fresh insights into the intertwined processes which gave the 20th century its particular feel of technological prowess and gaudy artificiality a cultural history of the senses in the modern age presents essays on the following topics the social life of the senses urban sensations the senses in the marketplace the senses in religion the senses in philosophy and science medicine and the senses the senses in literature art and the senses and sensory media this book makes an unparalleled attempt to analyze the rise of comparative religion as a particular response to modernization in the mid nineteenth century and continuing into the twentieth western scholars began to interpret religion s history drawing on prehistorical evidence recently deciphered texts and ethnographical reports religions that had been rejected as irrational by enlightenment philosophers were now studied with enthusiasm using comparative methods scholars identified in their own culture traces of ancient oriental and tribal religions not merely as survivals but increasingly as powerful manifestations of a human existence not subdued by rationality hans kippenberg shows how f max müller e b taylor w robertson smith j g frazer jane harrison r r marett e durkheim max weber william james and rudolf otto included in their reconstruction of the religious past a diagnosis of modern culture mysticism soul ritual magic pre animism world rejection and other notions were developed into a theory disclosing in modern culture an ignored continuity of worldviews and attitudes these scholars saw the modern world as still dependent on religion and believed that a history of religion could speak to questions about morality and identity that enlightened thinkers or theologians could no longer answer the study of ancient and non western religions they believed could help establish awareness of a genuine human culture threatened by an increasingly mechanized world their work shows how the historical concept of religion emerged and became plausible in the context of modernization and peoples experiences of modernization determined the meanings that religion assumed in the preface to this 2000 edition the authors point out that with the advent of the millennium it is important to take stock of the 20th century which has been labelled as the age of genocide this remarkable and thoughtful book examines some of the most shattering events in recent history from the annihilation of hiroshima and nagasaki to mass murder in sabra and shatila from the hijacking of the achille lauro to torture and murder by officials of the state in each case cassese tries to understand why states nietzsche s cold hearted monsters acted as they did and what this bodes for the future cassese also raises questions of a more general legal and political nature
