The Teacher 2012-08 purchase of this book includes free trial access to million books com where you can read more than a million books for free this is an ocr edition with typos excerpt from book chapter iii what is teaching teaching is not such a simple matter as pouring water from one vessel into another far from it if it were such a simple thing anybody could do it without training and in that case it would be scarcely worth doing at all it is far more complex and delicate than that with the most

Careful training people find it difficult and some of them cannot do it at all others continue to try but do the work in indifferent fashion if it should be said that it is more delicate than surgery there are those who would smile their incredulity but it is more delicate for surgery has to do with the bodily organs that are visible while teaching has to do with qualities of mind and spirit that are both invisible and intangible moreover surgery is performed with material instruments while teaching is done by means of agencies that were never fabricated by hand they are emanations of the spirit that can be neither weighed nor measured their gentle impact upon the spirit of the child begets a reaction of that spirit and the teaching process is under way something is happening in the spirit of the child because something has happened in the spirit of the teacher this is why we call education a spiritual process it is the spirit of the child that reacts and it is the high privilege of the teacher so to present each phase of the subject in hand that the spirit of the pupil will react as the housewife strives to make the food appetizing so the teacher needs to present truth in such alluring form that the spirit of the child will flash out toward it and grasp it if the teacher can contrive to make the pupil eager for his offerings to make his spiritual mouth to water as it were the rest will come easy to this end the teacher must know what
