experience and cultures relying on the insights of thinkers such as frantz fanon, wole soyinka, kwame anthony appiah, achille mbembe, and wolfgang welsch. This book suggests new approaches to interpreting African experiences. It discusses select African works of fiction as a paradigm for new interpretations of African experiences. The encyclopedia of the novel is the first reference book that focuses on the development of the novel throughout the world. Entries on individual writers assess the place of that writer within the development of the novel form, explaining why and in exactly what ways that writer is important. Similarly, an entry on an individual novel discusses the importance of that novel, not only form, analyzing the particular innovations that novel has introduced and the ways in which it has influenced the subsequent course of the genre. A wide range of topic entries explore the history, criticism, theory, production, dissemination, and reception of the novel. A very important component of the encyclopedia of the novel is its long surveys of development of the novel in various regions of the world.

A magical writer, one of the greatest of the twentieth century, Margaret Atwood's African literature is incomplete and unthinkable without the works of Chinua Achebe and Toni Morrison. A classic story of moral struggle in an age of turbulent social change and the final book in Chinua Achebe's African Trilogy, When Obi Okonkwo's Grandson Returns, depicts the main character in Things Fall Apart returning to Nigeria from England in the 1950s. His foreign education separates him from his African roots. No longer at ease, the third and concluding novel in Chinua Achebe's African Trilogy depicts the uncertainties that beset the nation of Nigeria as independence from colonial rule loomed near. In When Obi Okonkwo's Grandson Returns, Obi Okonkwo's experiences, the ambiguities, pitfalls, and temptations of a rapidly evolving society are revealed. He is part of a ruling Nigerian elite whose corruption he finds repugnant. His fate, however, overtakes him as he finds himself trapped between the expectation of his family, his village, both representations of the traditional world of his ancestors, and the colonial world. A story of a man lost in cultural limbo and a nation entering a new age of disillusionment, When Obi Okonkwo's Grandson Returns is a powerful metaphor for his generation of young Nigerians. Chinua Achebe is considered the father of modern African literature.

Chinua Achebe is considered the father of modern African literature, the writer who opened the magic casements of African fiction. The African Trilogy, comprised of Things Fall Apart, Arrow of God, and No Longer at Ease, is his magnum opus. In these masterly novels, Achebe brilliantly imagines the lives of three generations of an African community as their world is upended by the forces of colonialism. From the first arrival of the British to the waning days of empire, the Trilogy opens with the groundbreaking Things Fall Apart, the tale of Okonkwo, a hero in his village whose clashes with missionaries, coupled with his own tragic pride, lead to his fall from grace. Arrow of God takes up the ongoing conflict between continuity and change as Ezeulu, the headstrong chief priest, finds his authority is under threat from rivals and colonial functionaries, but he believes himself to be untouchable and is determined to lead his people even if it is towards their own destruction. Finally, in No Longer at Ease, Okonkwo's grandson, educated in England, returns to a civil service job in Lagos only to see his morality erode as he clings to his membership in the ruling elite, drawing on the traditional Igbo tales of Achebe's youth. The African Trilogy is a literary landmark, a mythic and universal tale of modern Africa. As Toni Morrison wrote, African literature is incomplete and unthinkable without the works
