The Chinese on the Art of Painting 2021-05-01 chinese art culture is a refreshingly clear look at the oldest and most productive continuous artistic tradition on earth from 7 000 year old neolithic potmaking and jade carving cultures to contemporary artists installation video and performance pieces this engrossing survey embraces the richness and complexity of chinese art in all the right ways this is a different kind of book on chinese art departing from the predictable narration of dynasties and styles robert l thorp and richard ellis vinograd present art as a cultural expression of societal expectations politics material culture belief systems and wider fields of culture they emphasize works of ancient art and architecture found in their original archaeological settings where that is not feasible they reconstruct interconnections among individual pieces and with their contexts of production to the broad cultural picture they add considerations of the material of which an object is made and the distinctive techniques used to make it thus an early ming vase is shown as the product of a new advance in firing technology that enabled control of copper red glazes and as a reflection in its shape of the lingering taste of the early ming emperors for things tibetan chinese art is one of the most active and mutable areas of cultural scholarship today thorp and vinograd are leaders in a generation of scholars who are reexamining long held conceptions about chinese art for example the notion that chinese art has essential and permanent characteristics and the idea that chinese art and culture were untouched by outside influences just as important the authors give popular religious and craft arts their just due richly illustrated some of the objects have almost never been pictured before and enhanced with special topic sidebars this long awaited book answers the needs of students collectors and lovers of chinese art for a work that is current in approach and scholarship and is at the same time reader friendly book jacket

Chinese Art: The Impossible Collection 2001 chinese art and its encounter with the world examines chinese art from the mid eighteenth century to the present beginning with discussion of a chinese portrait modeler from canton who traveled to london in 1769 and ending with an analysis of art and visual culture in post colonial hong kong by means of a series of six closely focused case studies often deliberately introducing non canonical or previously marginalized aspects of chinese visual culture it analyzes chinese art's encounter with the broader world and in particular with the west offering more than a simple charting of influences it uncovers a pattern of richly mutual interchange between chinese art and its others arguing that we cannot fully understand modern chinese art without taking this expanded global context into account it attempts to break down barriers between areas of art history which have hitherto largely been treated within separate and often nationally conceived frames aware that issues of cultural difference need to be addressed by art historians as much as by artists it represents a pioneering attempt to produce art historical writing which is truly global in approach david clarke is professor in the department of fine arts university of hong kong
