training for firefighters must be planned so that they experience reasonably realistic situations in which they encounter the hazards likely to be met in operational incidents whilst the risk of resultant injury is controlled and all unnecessary risks avoided one hazard is that of high environmental temperature which can present an acute risk of burn injury eg through contact with hot debris and a less acute risk of physiological heat stress it is this latter risk which is addressed in this document the guidance is based on a study of environmental temperatures during training sessions together with the resultant body temperatures of those taking part measures outlined include pre exposure procedures monitoring and control procedures during training post exposure control an appendix describes the effects of heat on the body and heat related disorders
