wells describes his aim as to state as forcibly and exactly as possible the religious belief of the writer he distinguishes his religious beliefs from christianity and warns readers that he is particularly uncompromising on the doctrine of the trinity which he blames on the violent ultimate crystallization of nicaea he pleads for a modern religion or nascent religion that has no revelation and no founder wells rejects any belief related to god as nature or the creator confining himself to the finite god of the human heart he devotes a chapter to misconceptions about god that are due to mistaken mental elaboration as opposed to heresies of speculation and says that the god in which he believes has nothing to do with magic providence quietism punishment the threatening of children or sexual ethics positively in a chapter entitled the likeness of god he states his belief that god is courage a person youth i e forward rather than backward looking and love wells finds in scientific atheists like metchnikoff beliefs that are equivalent to what he regards as the fundamental proposition of religious translated into terms of materialistic science the proposition that damnation is really over individuation and that salvation is escape from self into the larger being of life in god the invisible king wells regards belief in god as welling up from within the individual if you do not feel god then there is no persuading you of him we cannot win over the incredulous the book argues that god seeks the conquest of death through a struggle to transform the world into a theocracy that he regards as more and more manifestly the real future of mankind not through suffering or non resistance sin is seen not as bad conduct but as the product of disharmonies of the inner being that snatch us away from our devotion to god s service and such weaknesses cannot damn a man once he has found god a final seventh chapter rejects the idea that the new religion can or should be organised into a church whatever religious congregations men may form henceforth in the name of the true god must be for their own sakes and not to take charge of religion in a section titled the state is god s instrument wells speaks of a coming theocracy and argues that in the probably not too distant future religion which is free speaking freely through whom it will subject to a perpetual unlimited criticism will be the life and driving power of the whole organised world much of the material for this volume was collected during the time that i was preparing for the press the evolution of woman or while searching for data bearing on the subject of sex specialization while preparing that book for publication it was my intention to include within it this branch of my investigation but wishing to obtain certain facts relative to the foundations of religious belief and worship which were not accessible at that time and knowing that considerable labor and patience would be required in securing these facts i decided to publish the first part of the work withholding for the time being that portion of it pertaining especially to the development of the god idea as mankind construct their own gods or as the prevailing ideas of the unknowable reflect the inner consciousness of human beings a trustworthy history of the growth of religions must correspond to the processes involved in the mental moral and social development of the individual and the nation by means of data brought forward in these later times relative to the growth of the god idea it is observed that an independent chain of evidence has been produced in support of the facts recently set forth bearing upon the development of the two diverging lines of sexual demarcation in other words it has been found that sex is the fundamental fact not only in the operations of nature but in the construction of a god
