digital media technologies have provided an occasion not only for novel ways to display and exhibit collections but also for new politics to arise as museums and urban settings change while some believe these changes are driven by humans others see digital media technologies at the heart of these changes reconfiguring the museum offers a third explanation that considers both the social and technical together and thereby captures the experimental nature of introducing novel digital media technologies to museums and the uncertainty messiness contingency and complexity involved in this sociotechnical case study of a novel augmented reality app first designed to exhibit collections from the museum of london across the sprawling capital city and later remade for the mccord museum to display collections throughout montreal ana maria herman reveals how the app introduced unexpected new relations between the museums their collections advertising agencies sponsors technology companies corporations urban spaces and end users she shows how museum practices related to curating designing building visiting and modifying exhibitions were transformed and how in such unsettled arrangements what we think of as old cultural politics can unexpectedly re emerge while new digital politics related to big data surveillance and automated processes may not necessarily materialize a detailed account of emerging actors and practices involved in making digital exhibitions reconfiguring the museum offers practical considerations for museum culture and heritage practitioners charged with creating digital displays and accounting for their success or failure in seeing like a citizen kara moskowitz approaches kenya s late colonial and early postcolonial eras as a single period of political economic and social transition in focusing on rural kenyans the vast majority of the populace and the main targets of development interventions as they actively sought access to aid she offers new insights into the texture of political life in decolonizing kenya and the early postcolonial world using multisited archival sources and oral histories focused on the western rift valley seeing like a citizen makes three fundamental contributions to our understanding of african and kenyan history first it challenges the widely accepted idea of the gatekeeper state revealing that state control remained limited and that the postcolonial state was an internally varied and often dissonant institution second it transforms our understanding of postcolonial citizenship showing that its balance of rights and duties was neither claimed nor imposed but negotiated and differentiated third it reorients kenyan historiography away from central kenya and elite postcolonial politics the result is a powerful investigation of experiences of independence of the meaning and form of development and of how global political practices were composed and recomposed on the ground in local settings the track record of it projects is poor less than a third of it projects deliver what they said they would on schedule and on budget the major cause of it project failure is not as you might expect poor it leadership or difficult technology but poor business leadership one of the reasons for this is that unlike their it peers business managers often get little training or education in project delivery let alone the special case represented by an it project business leadership for it projects addresses the gap by providing tools and ideas that are applicable to all sizes of it projects from those in large multinational corporations down to small growing businesses it sets out the key project touchpoints where business leadership can have a major impact on project success the book combines psychological research and project best practice to create a practical toolbox that can be dipped into as needs arise or followed as an overall approach to it project leadership the toolbox weaves together three key strands of thought first that the concept of value should be at the forefront of project design and delivery second that business managers need to take active leadership of it projects to secure value third that project teams need tools to slow down their thinking and ensure that actions and decisions are well thought through this book provides a richer understanding of democratic local politics in indonesia after the implementation of local direct elections in 2005 co published with the university of airlangga press it confronts the question as to why incumbent political leaders succeed and fail in their bid for re election by focusing on urban and rural districts in east java one of the most populated regions in indonesia the work unpacks the general trends of local indonesian politics drawing from an empirically sound and theoretically well grounded case study the author demonstrates that good policy performance does not guarantee the political survival of the incumbent and reversibly bad policy performance does not necessarily mean losing political power it considers the core political strategies of populism rivalry and tangibility and cautions that rather than helping liberal democracy to grow these strategies support patronage driven democracy within this system a small number of vital protectors and defenders control patronage and problematically exert influential control over the country s electoral processes relevant to scholars and students in indonesian studies and within political science and asian studies more broadly this book follows a gripping and nuanced narrative that explains the relationship between policy choices informal politics voting behavior and political survival in indonesia second supplementary phase 1 peer review report for panama the mainstream agri food system in thailand has been shaped to aid capital accumulation by domestic and transnational hegemonic forces and is currently sustained through hegemonic agri food production distribution governance structures and ideational order however sustainable agriculture and land reform movements have to certain extents managed to offer alternatives this book adopts a neo marxist and gramscian approach to studying the political economy of the agricultural and food system in thailand 1990 2014 the author argues that hegemonic forces have many measures to co opt dissent into hegemonic structures and that counter hegemony should be seen as an ongoing process over a long period of time where predominantly counter hegemonic forces constrained by political economic structural conditions may at times retain some hegemonic elements contrary to what some academic studies suggest the author argues that localist inspired social movements in thailand are not insular and anti globalisation instead they are selective in fostering collaborations and globalisation based on values such as sustainability fairness and partnership providing new perspectives on polarised politics in thailand particularly how cross class alliances can further or frustrate counter hegemonic movements the book points to the importance of analysing social movements in relation to established political authority it will be of interest to academics in the field of politics and international relations sociology development studies and asian studies mothers under fire mothering in conflict areas examines the experiences of women mothering in conflict areas the aim of this collection is to engage with the nature and meaning of motherhood and mothering during times of war and or in zones experiencing the threat of war the essays in the collection reflect diverse disciplinary perspectives through which scholars and field practitioners reveal how conflict shapes mothering practices one of the unique contributions of the collection is that it highlights not only the particular difficulties mothers face in various geographic locations where conflict has been prevalent but also the ways in which mothers display agency to challenge and negotiate the circumstances that oppress them the collection raises awareness of the needs of women and children in areas affected by military and or political violence worldwide and provides a basis for developing multiple policy frameworks aimed at improving existing systems of support in local contexts kristen p williams clark university russia one of the most ethno culturally diverse countries in the world provides a rich case study on how globalisation and associated international trends are disrupting and causing the radical rethinking of approaches to inter ethnic cohesion the book highlights the importance of television broadcasting in shaping national discourse and the place of ethno cultural diversity within it it argues that television s role here has been reinforced rather than diminished by the rise of new media technologies through an analysis of a wide range of news and other television programmes the book shows how the covert meanings of discourse on a particular issue can diverge from the overt significance attributed to it just as the impact of that discourse may not conform with the original aims of the broadcasters the book discusses the tension between the imperative to maintain security through centralised government and overall national cohesion that russia shares with other european states and the need to remain sensitive to and to accommodate the needs and perspectives of ethnic minorities and labour migrants it compares the increasingly isolationist popular ethnonationalism in russia which harks back to old fashioned values with the similar rise of the tea party in the united states and the uk independence party in britain throughout this extremely rich well argued book complicates and challenges received wisdom on russia s recent descent into authoritarianism it points to a regime struggling to negotiate the dilemmas it faces given its soviet legacy of ethnic particularism weak civil society large native muslim population and overbearing yet far from entirely effective state control of the media this updated commentary on the 1997 anti personnel mine ban convention addresses international law and state practice on anti personnel mines under the treaty it describes the use of anti personnel mines through to the present day the destruction of landmine stockpiles and mine clearance in every affected nation low carbon development key issues is the first comprehensive textbook to political and technological nature for low carbon development exploring topics such as the political economy social justice financing and carbon markets and technologies and innovation for low carbon transportation afterwards practical case studies are discussed from low carbon development in low income countries in africa middle income countries in asia and latin america and high income countries in europe and north america written by an international team of leading academics and practitioners in the field of low carbon development this book is essential reading for students academics professionals and policy makers interested in the fields of low carbon development climate change mitigation climate policy climate change and development global environmental change and environment and development the corporation is a major vehicle of business activity worldwide it incurs social costs and generates benefits that continually change hence whether it still provides a net benefit to society is contestable evidence based observations of the last decade of corporate sagas and the role of accounting and auditing suggests a serious rethink is needed about how commerce is pursued and in particular whether the current corporate form has passed its use by date the authors of this new book including internationally renowned accounting scholars argue that the two major governance tools of accounting and auditing require major makeovers beginning by analyzing the global sweep of deregulation that corporations experienced since 2000 the authors go on to discuss the various scandals and crises that characterized the subsequent period culminating in yet more calls for further deregulation having thoroughly assessed the status quo they provide a series of urgent recommendations for reforms designed to bring the corporation back to the real world and restore its purpose this book will be of great interest to students and academics across accounting business law and finance especially more advanced students at undergraduate and postgraduate level it is perhaps ironic that as the global financial crisis has in some cases led governments and institutions to pull back from and or set more modest goals and associated funding around widening participation there is an ever growing sense that the ideals buttressing the widening participation movement are becoming more universally acknowledged by educators across the globe that acknowledgement has translated into action on the ground via such means as policy formulation strategic planning and target setting each of which often reflects local contexts and manifests a regional flavour there is also however an increasing realisation that there are commonalities in the challenges involved with national or regional initiatives to increase the participation of non traditional groups in higher education and that the drivers of such initiatives and ultimately the cohorts they target stand to benefit considerably from an open exchange of ideas and sharing of experience this book brings together current regional perspectives on widening participation as presented by prominent academics researchers policy makers and students from across the globe it will create for policy makers institutions and individuals interested in enabling access a useful and informative resource that will introduce formulate shape and reinforce the ideas and aims of the world congresses on widening access as the contributors maintain in an increasingly globalised market economy and in the face of recent seismic economic political and social change around the world it is imperative to both secure existing talent within our populations and uncover and nurture new sources of talent the series of essays featured in this book will explore anticipate and highlight themes underpinning a global movement towards a step change in thinking strategies and policies one that places youth and students from around the world at its heart this book studies relevant actors and practices of conflict intervention by african regional organizations and their intimate connection to space making addressing a major gap regarding what actually happens within and around these organizations based on extensive empirical research it argues that those intervention practices are essentially spatializing practices based on particular spatial imaginations contributing to the continuous construction and formatting of regional spaces as well as to ordering relations between different regional spaces analyzing the field of developing practices of conflict intervention by the economic community of west african states ecowas and the african union au the book contributes a new theory oriented analytical approach to study african regional organizations ros and the complex dynamics of african peace and security based on insights from critical geography as such it helps to close an empirical gap with regard to the internal modes of operation of african ros as well as the lack of their theorization it demonstrates that contrary to most accounts intervention practices of african ros have been diverse and complexly interrelated involving different actors within and around these organizations and are essentially tied to the space making this book will be of key interest to students and scholars of african politics governance peace and security studies international or regional organizations and more broadly to comparative regionalism international relations and international studies 21st complex system that offers multiple potentials for interaction with the urban system urban open space and agriculture can be linked to a productive green infrastructure this forms new urban rural linkages in the urbanizing region and helps shape the city but in order to do this agriculture has to be seen as an integral part of the urban fabric and it has to be put on the local agenda urban agriculture for growing city regions takes the example of casablanca one of the fastest growing cities in north africa to investigate this approach the creation of synergies between the urban and rural in an emerging megacity is demonstrated through pilot projects design solutions and multifunctional modules these synergies assure greater resource efficiency particularly regarding the use and reuse of water and they strengthen regional food security and the social integration of multiple spheres a transdisciplinary research approach brings together different scientific disciplines and implemented in the aftermath of 11 september 2001 have assumed that men suffer the most both numerically and in terms of the nature of rights violations endured this assumption has obscured the ways that women men and sexual minorities experience counter terrorism by integrating gender into a human rights analysis of counter terrorism and human rights into a gendered analysis of counter terrorism this volume aims to reverse this trend through this variegated human rights lens the authors in this volume identify the spectrum and nature of rights violations arising in the context of gendered underpinned by the strong demand for arms in asia and the middle east the two largest arms export markets in the world of these two regions asia has become particularly significant led by the emergence of china and india as major powers it is therefore not surprising that the rapid military modernisation in asia accompanied by significant increases in the size and sophistication of armed forces has generated attention as to its trends key characteristics causes and implications this phenomenon which has become evident since the end of the cold war has also been widely described as an asian arms race this book evaluates the key conceptual ideas which can shed light on this phenomenon as well as examining the complex mix of internal external and technological factors that have led to its emergence the volume explores the way in which the arms race is leading ultimately to three distinctive blocs in the emerging geostrategic landscape a loose bloc of us allies in the region a counter bloc of potential us adversaries and a neutral bloc of states with industrial age armed forces whose allegiances will vary according to circumstances and geostrategic developments the arms race in asia concludes that if the emerging arms race is left unchecked it is likely that asia will increasingly become a region of instability marked by conflicts and interstate wars the book will be of great interest to students of asian politics strategic studies defence studies security studies and in general the growing impact of university rankings on public policy and on students choices has cultural management and corporate social responsibility scholars generally agree that courts are powerful authorities in settling disputes between parties but the broader political impact of such resolution is disputed are courts powerful generators of political change this book examines the ability of the court of justice of the european union cjeu to foster political change for a european union eu social policy including healthcare the conventional assumption is that a strong causal link exists between legal and political integration in the eu in which court rulings progress and shape european integration the book challenges this view on the basis of a careful examination of how judicial legislative interactions determine the scope and limits of european integration in the daily eu decision making processes the legislative impact of court rulings is traced by the use of original data over time from 1957 to 2014 and through three case studies eu working time regulation patients rights in cross border healthcare and regulation of the posting of workers the book finds that eu legislative politics has the capacity to condition the more general impact of legal integration it demonstrates how the broader reach of jurisprudence results from a continuous interplay between law and politics but one where the interpretations perceptions and interests of political actors and governing majorities matter for judicial influence on policies despite fragmentation of eu politics politicians can modify and sometimes reject judicial influence on policy outputs rather than being judicialized eu politics respond to and condition the political impact of legal integration which again affects judicial behaviour the world s first independent black republic haiti was forged in the digital media technologies have provided an occasion not only for novel ways to display and exhibit collections but also for new politics to arise as museums and urban settings change while some believe these changes are driven by humans others see digital media technologies at the heart of these changes reconfiguring the museum offers a third explanation that considers both the social and technical together and thereby captures the experimental nature of introducing novel digital media technologies to museums and the uncertainty messiness contingency and complexity involved in this sociotechnical case study of a novel augmented reality app first designed to exhibit collections from the museum of london across the sprawling capital city and later remade for the mccord museum to display collections throughout montreal ana maria herman reveals how the app introduced unexpected new relations between the museums their collections advertising agencies sponsors technology companies corporations urban spaces and end users she shows how museum practices related to curating designing building visiting and modifying exhibitions were transformed and how in such unsettled arrangements what we think of as old cultural politics can unexpectedly re emerge while new digital politics related to big data surveillance and automated processes may not necessarily materialize a detailed account of emerging actors and practices involved in making digital exhibitions reconfiguring the museum offers practical considerations for museum culture and heritage practitioners charged with creating digital displays and accounting for their success or failure

in seeing like a citizen kara moskowitz approaches kenya s late colonial and early postcolonial eras as a single period of political economic and social transition in focusing on rural kenyans the vast majority of the populace and the main targets of development interventions as they actively sought access to aid she offers new insights into the texture of political life in decolonizing kenya and the early postcolonial world using multisited archival sources and oral histories focused on the western rift valley seeing like a citizen makes three fundamental contributions to our understanding of african and kenyan history first it challenges the widely accepted idea of the gatekeeper state revealing that state control remained limited and that the postcolonial state was an internally varied and often dissonant institution second it transforms our understanding of postcolonial citizenship showing that its balance of rights and duties was neither claimed nor imposed but negotiated and differentiated third it reorients kenyan historiography away from central kenya and elite postcolonial politics the result is a powerful investigation of experiences of independence of the meaning and form of development and of how global political practices were composed and recomposed on the ground in local settings the track record of it projects is poor less than a third of it projects deliver what they said they would on schedule and on budget the major cause of it project failure is not as you might expect poor it leadership or difficult technology but poor business leadership one of the reasons for this is that unlike their it peers business managers often get little training or education in project delivery let alone the special case represented by an it project business leadership for it projects addresses the gap by providing tools and ideas that are applicable to all sizes of it projects from those in large multinational corporations down to small growing businesses it sets out the key project touchpoints where business leadership can have a major impact on project success the book combines psychological research and project best practice to create a practical toolbox that can be dipped into as needs arise or followed as an overall approach to it project leadership the toolbox weaves together three key strands of thought first that the concept of value should be at the forefront of project design and delivery second that business managers need to take active leadership of it projects to secure value third that project teams need tools to slow down their thinking and ensure that actions and decisions are well thought through

Emerging Local Politics in Indonesia

this book provides a richer understanding of democratic local politics in indonesia after the implementation of local direct elections in 2005 co published with the university of airlangga press it confronts the question as to why incumbent political leaders succeed and fail in their bid for re election by focusing on urban and rural districts in east java one of the most populated regions in indonesia the work unpacks the general trends of local indonesian politics drawing from an empirically sound and theoretically well grounded case study the author demonstrates that good policy performance does not guarantee the political survival of the incumbent and reversibly bad policy performance does not necessarily mean losing political power it considers the core political strategies of populism rivalry and tangibility and cautions that rather than helping liberal democracy to grow these strategies support patronage driven democracy within this system a small number of vital protectors and defenders control patronage and problematically exert influential control over the country s electoral processes relevant to scholars and students in indonesian studies and within political science and asian studies more broadly this book follows a gripping and nuanced narrative that explains the relationship between policy choices informal politics voting behavior and political survival in indonesia russia one of the most ethno culturally diverse countries in the world provides a rich case study on how globalisation and associated international trends are disrupting and causing the radical rethinking of approaches to inter ethnic cohesion the book highlights the importance of television broadcasting in shaping national discourse and the place of ethno cultural diversity within it it argues that television s role here has been reinforced rather than diminished by the rise of new media technologies through an analysis of a wide range of news and other television programmes the book shows how the covert meanings of discourse on a particular issue can diverge from the overt significance attributed to it just as the impact of that discourse may not conform with the original aims of the broadcasters the book discusses the tension between the imperative to maintain security through centralised government and overall national cohesion that russia shares with other european states and the need to remain sensitive to and to accommodate the needs and perspectives of ethnic minorities and labour migrants it compares the increasingly isolationist popular ethnonationalism in russia which harks back to old fashioned values with the similar rise of the tea party in the united states and the uk independence party in britain throughout this extremely rich well argued book complicates and challenges received wisdom on russia s recent descent into authoritarianism it points to a regime struggling to negotiate the dilemmas it faces given its soviet legacy of ethnic particularism weak civil society large native muslim population and overbearing yet far from entirely effective state control of the media

it is perhaps ironic that as the global financial crisis has in some cases led governments and institutions to pull back from and or set more modest goals and associated funding around widening participation there is an ever growing sense that the ideals buttressing the widening participation movement are becoming more universally acknowledged by educators across the globe that acknowledgement has translated into action on the ground via such means as policy formulation strategic planning and target setting each of which often reflects local contexts and manifests a regional flavour there is also however an increasing realisation that there are commonalities in the challenges involved with national or regional initiatives to increase the participation of non traditional groups in higher education and that the drivers of such initiatives and ultimately the cohorts they target stand to benefit considerably from an open exchange of ideas and sharing of experience this book brings together current regional perspectives on widening participation as presented by prominent academics researchers policy makers and students from across the globe it will create for policy makers institutions and individuals interested in enabling access a useful and informative resource that will introduce formulate shape and reinforce the ideas and aims of the world congresses on widening access as the contributors maintain in an increasingly globalised market economy and in the face of recent seismic economic political and social change around the world it is imperative to both secure existing talent within our populations and uncover and nurture new sources of talent the series of essays featured in this book will explore anticipate and highlight themes underpinning a global movement towards a step change in thinking strategies and policies one that places youth and students from around the world at its heart this book is the first systematic examination of the emerging arms race in asia the global trade in arms is to a large degree underpinned by the strong demand for arms in asia and the middle east the two largest arms export markets in the world of these two regions asia has become particularly significant led by the emergence of china and india as major powers it is therefore not surprising that the rapid military modernisation in asia accompanied by significant increases in the size and sophistication of armed forces has generated attention as to its trends key characteristics causes and implications this phenomenon which has become evident since the end of the cold war has also been widely described as an asian arms race this book evaluates the key conceptual ideas which can shed light on this phenomenon as well as examining the complex mix of internal external and technological factors that have led to its emergence the volume explores the way in which the arms race is leading ultimately to three distinctive blocs in the emerging geostrategic landscape a loose bloc of us allies in the region a counter bloc of potential us adversaries and a neutral bloc of states with industrial age armed forces whose allegiances will vary according to circumstances and geostrategic developments the arms race in asia concludes that if the emerging arms race is left unchecked it is likely that asia will increasingly become a region of instability marked by conflicts and interstate wars the book will be of great interest to students of asian politics strategic studies defence studies security studies and ir in general this volume contributes to the growing debate surrounding the impact that the rising powers may or may not be having on contemporary global political and economic governance through studies of brazil india china and other important developing countries within their respective regions such as turkey and south africa we raise the question of the extent to which the challenge posed by the rising powers to global governance is likely to lead to an increase in democracy and social justice for the majority of the world s peoples by addressing such questions the volume explicitly seeks to raise the broader normative question of the implications of this emergent redistribution of economic and political power for the sustainability and legitimacy of the emerging 21st century system of global political and economic governance questions of democracy legitimacy and social justice are largely ignored or under emphasised in many existing studies and the aim of this collection of papers is to show that serious consideration of such questions provides important insights into the sustainability of the emerging global political economy and new forms of global governance this book was published as a special issue of third world quarterly
