mariners made a major but neglected contribution to england's warfare in the middle ages here their role is examined anew showing their importance during the fourteenth century england was scarred by famine plague and warfare through such disasters however emerged great feats of human endurance not only did the english population recover from starvation and disease but thousands of the kingdom's subjects went on to defeat the scots and the french in several notable battles victories such as halidon hill neville's cross cr cy and poitiers not only helped to recover the pride of the english chivalrous class but also secured the reputation of edward iii and the black prince yet what has been underemphasized in this historical narrative is the role played by men of more humble origins none more so than the medieval mariner this is unfortunate because during the fourteenth century the manpower and ships provided by the english merchant fleet underpinned every military expedition the aim of this book is to address this gap its fresh approach to the sources allows the enormous contribution of the english merchant fleet to the wars conducted by edward ii and edward iii to be revealed the author also explores the complex administrative process of raising a fleet and provides career profiles for many mariners examining the familial relationships that existed in port communities and the shipping resources of english ports craig l lambert is research assistant at the university of hull the outcome of much of the maritime warfare in the second world war was decided by the torpedo or the aerial bomb making relatively recent warship types the submarine and aircraft carrier the new arbiters naval conflict yet despite this there was a surprising number of traditional ship to ship engagements involving the big guns of battleships and cruisers this book recounts some of the most important technically interesting or obscure of these gunfire duels in a narrative that combines pacy storytelling with an in depth understanding of the factors influencing victory or defeat covering all theatres of the naval war from 1939 until the japanese surrender the incidents are selected to demonstrate the changing face of surface warfare under the influence of rapidly improving fire control systems radar and other sensors by 1945 this allowed big ships to open fire at great ranges with a high probability of hitting with the first salvo this success was the pinnacle of gunnery excellence but also heralded the end of naval gunnery as a major factor in sea warfare facing such deadly accuracy navies looked to longer ranged and smarter ship killing weapons like surface skimming missiles and

homing torpedoes
