The Punjabis in British Columbia 2012 In this richly detailed study Kamala Nayar documents the social and cultural transformation of the Punjabi community in British Columbia from their initial settlement in the rural Skeena region to the communities that later developed in larger urban centres. The Punjabis in British Columbia illustrates the complex and diverse experiences of an immigrant community that merits greater attention exploring themes of gender employment rural and urban migrant life and the relationships between the Punjabis and surrounding First Nations and other immigrant groups. Nayar creates a portrait of a community in transition shedding light on the ways in which economic circumstances affect immigrant communities. Nayar presents findings from interviews conducted with over one hundred participants. She details the relocation of Punjabi populations from the Skeena region to British Columbia's lower mainland during the decline of the forestry and fishery industries how their second migration changed their professional and personal lives and how their history continues to shape the identities and experiences of Punjabis in Canada today. A nuanced look at the complexities of social and cultural adaptation The Punjabis in British Columbia adds an essential perspective to what it means to be Canadian.

Cracks in the Ivory Tower 2019-04-01 Academics extol high minded ideals such as serving the common good and promoting social justice. Universities aim to be centers of learning that find the best and brightest students treat them fairly and equip them with the knowledge they need to lead better lives. But as Jason Brennan and Phillip Magness show in Cracks in the Ivory Tower, American universities fall far short of this ideal. At almost every level they find that students professors and administrators are guided by self interest rather than ethical concerns. College bureaucratic structures also often incentivize and reward bad behavior while disincentivizing and even punishing good behavior. Most students faculty and administrators are out to serve themselves and pass their costs onto others. The problems are deep and pervasive. Most academic marketing and advertising is semi fraudulent to justify their own pay raises and higher budgets. Administrators hire expensive and unnecessary staff. Faculty exploit students for tuition dollars through gen ed requirements. Students hardly learn anything and cheating is pervasive at every level. Academics disguise their pursuit of self interest with high faluting moral language. Marshaling an array of data Brennan and Magness expose many of the ethical failings of academia and in turn reshape our understanding of how such high power institutions run their business. Everyone knows academia is dysfunctional. Brennan and Magness show the problems are worse than anyone realized. Academics have only themselves to blame.
