The Unnameable Monster in Literature and Film

2013-10-30

this book visits the thing in its various manifestations as an unnameable monster in literature and film reinforcing the idea that the very essence of the monster is its excess and its indeterminacy tied primarily to the artistic modes of the gothic science fiction and horror the unnameable monster retains a persistent presence in literary forms as a reminder of the sublime object that exceeds our worst fears beville examines various representations of this elusive monster and argues that we must look at the monster rather than through it at ourselves as such this book responds to the obsessive manner in which the monsters of literature and culture are managed in processes of classification and in claims that they serve a social function by embodying all that is horrible in the human imagination the book primarily considers literature from the romantic period to the present and film that leans toward postmodernism incorporating disciplines such as cultural theory film theory literary criticism and continental philosophy it focuses on that most difficult but interesting quality of the monster its unnameability in order to transform and accelerate current readings of not only the monsters of literature and film but also those that are the focus of contemporary theoretical discussion

The Metaphor of the Monster 2020-10-15 the metaphor of the monster offers fresh perspectives and a variety of disciplinary approaches to the ever broadening field of monster studies the eclectic group of contributors to this volume represents areas of study not generally considered under the purview of monster studies including world literature classical studies philosophy ecocriticism animal ethics and gender studies combining historical overviews with contemporary and global outlooks this volume recontextualizes the monstrous entities that have always haunted the human imagination in the age of the anthropocene it also invites reflection on new forms of monstrosity in an era epitomized by an unprecedented deluge of mis information uniting researchers from varied academic backgrounds in a common effort to challenge the monstrous labels that have historically been imposed upon the other this book endeavors above all to bring the monster out of the shadows and into the light of moral consideration

The Horrid Looking Glass: Reflections on Monstrosity from the fictional world of vampires zombies and invaders from other worlds to the very real world of revolutionary france and in between the nature of the monster encompasses the very quality that makes them so believable that which we perceive as other while there is a commonality in this otherness the monster lurking in the shadows concealed in darkness or conjured with a few lines from a horror novel suggests the monster as one onto which we are free to project the most distorted and un human features in each chapter of this volume you will discover that the way in which we project what is monstrous is not a singular other but is in fact a part of our own self identity the greatest horror of the monster is not that it stands apart but that once we pull it from the shadow of our own projected imagination we discover that that the monster we fear is also bound to our own mirror image to look at the monster to name that which must never be named is to look upon a reflection and embrace a part of our nature we do not wish to see public relations branding and authenticity brand communications in the digital age explores the role of pr and branding in society by considering the notion of authentic communications within the context of an emerging digital media environment this qualitative analysis explores the challenge of developing authentic brand narratives in the digital age whilst questioning the problematic nature of authenticity itself case studies of public relations activity of successful brands and those in crisis are supplemented by interviews with senior public relations and branding practitioners the book lays out three specific arguments firstly a repositioning of the relationship between public relations and brand practice is explored it is argued that public relations practitioners are well placed to facilitate brands in the digital age because of the inherent acceptance of the value of relationship building adaptation and boundary spanning embedded in pr practice and best practice theory secondly the book introduces a new concept of riparian brands such brands are based on solid core values but have an ability to atune adjust and naturalise to the prevailing social cultural and economic environment thirdly the book presents an ontology of the riparian brand in the form of an authentic brand wheel and 15 real time interaction success factors aimed at both academics and practitioners interested in the theoretical development of pr and its emerging relationship with branding it will also be of interest to scholars of corporate communications corporate reputation and branding shape may be regarded as the external contour of an organism while form describes the three dimensional arrangement of the component parts these are distinct yet interdependent concepts and both are a consequence of development the forces and processes which determine shape and form in plants and fungi have fascinated botanists and mycologists for centuries theories abound yet real understanding remains elusive the authors in this volume address these matters from a wide variety of different standpoints the contributions are not an attempt to cover the entire field but rather a collection likely to stimulate new thought and intellectual excitement the strength of the volume lies in its diversity of approach and philosophy some important themes arise the creative tension between the holistic and reductionist approaches to analysis of shape and form the paucity of information on the internal messages and forces which link genome and phenotype and the potential of research with unicellular plants and with fungi where the relative simplicity of the systems for study and the increasing availability of the appropriate analytical tools should lead to major advances in understanding this volume will prove invaluable as a basis for discussion between plant scientists ecologists and evolutionary biologists at all levels horror s pleasures fundamentally hinge on looking backward either on destabilising trauma or as a period of comfort and happiness which is undermined by threat however this stretches beyond the scares on our screens to the consumption and criticism of the monsters of our past the horror films of our youth can be locations of psychological and social trauma or the happy place we go back to for comfort when our lives become unsettled horror that haunts us nostalgia revisionism and trauma in contemporary american horror is a collection of essays that brings together multiple theoretical and critical approaches to consider the way popular horror films from the last fifty years communicate embody and rework our view of the past whether we look at our current relationship to the scary movies of decades ago as personal or cultural memory the way historical and sociopolitical events and frameworks especially traumas reframe the way we look at our pasts or even the way recent horror films and video games look back at our past and the past of the genre itself through a filter of experience and history this collection will show the close
