these gentlemen do not hesitate to take a serious look at the major fights of today weigh the important factors and make a prediction as to how the contest will proceed and who will win this does not mean they are always correct who is but in addressing how each combatant will fight his adversary they are usually on target in selecting the winner again they are correct an uncanny number of times so it is quite interesting to see what they have to say in advance of a match and also in assessing the outcome their study of boxing is not limited to the present either while they focus primarily on boxers after the year 1930 they are well read and extremely knowledgeable about the old timers that preceded these men even as far back as the bare knuckle fighters i have experienced some challenging debates with tom and frank regarding several men in boxing history and in some cases i am hard pressed to produce a decent argument in response to some of the points they emphasize i have followed boxing for over 57 years now ever since i was a child eight years of age i have seen great fighters in action and have read extensively on the subject magazines books and newspapers from as far back as 1820 i have read what sportswriters coaches athletes boxers and fans have to say in conclusion i must say that tom and frank write with as much authority and in depth knowledge as anyone i have read and exhibit in their writing the keen observation and analysis that is often lacking in the work of many others the book makes for a good reader on the subject of boxing with short and easy to read essays that serve to whet the appetite of a boxing fan tracy callis
