based on real events it s the mid 1980s a time of leg warmers and walkmans a period when technology was starting to take shape yet tradition still had its strong foundations the world was an expanse of contrasts nowhere more so than in the lives of two young individuals one from the sunburned expanses of barmera a quaint town in south australia s riverland and the other from the bustling neon lit streets of tokyo japan two lives impossibly different each characterised by their own forms of simplicity and complexity familiarity and strangeness and yet destiny has a way of weaving tales from the most unlikely threads their worlds were destined to collide challenging their views on love culture and what it means to truly be with someone this is a tale of love destined to be together by chance but challenged by the vast distance between them and their immensely different backgrounds as you turn the pages you will walk with them through the sunsets of australia and the neon nights of tokyo you ll share their joys struggles triumphs and setbacks and you ll witness how two individuals separated by geography and culture are united in their search for love and meaning amidst life s unpredictability two souls separated by boundless oceans and contrasting worlds bound together by a love that defies all odds will fate be the force that keeps them apart or the bridge that brings them together in a world marked by differences they ll find that the language of love is universal even if it speaks in diverse dialects a true story this novel is inspired by true events and real life experiences however names and other identifying details have been changed to protect the privacy and anonymity of the individuals involved while the story aims to reflect the emotional truth of the events it depicts it should be noted that some liberties have been taken with the timeline events and conversations for the sake of narrative coherence
