twentieth century world concerns the degree to which industrialization created a common culture for all peoples reported here are the results of an empirical investigation designed to produce instruments to measure those personal values that have been central variables in the theory of modernization of societies the purpose of joseph kahl s research is primarily methodological to advance the description and measurement of those value orientations used by men to organize their occupational careers it seeks to delineate and measure a set of values that represents a modern view of work and life the working laboratory was brazil and mexico two countries undergoing rapid industrialization more than six hundred men in brazil and more than seven hundred in mexico responded to questionnaires in addition over twenty five men in each country were asked to sit beside a tape recorder and talk freely of their worldviews the respondents were divided between inhabitants of the cities of rio de janeiro and mexico city and those who lived in provincial towns of fewer than ten thousand inhabitants the samples included manual and nonmanual employees the results showed that the main variable predicting whether or not a man would tend toward modernism was his social class position middle class men were much more modern in outlook than working class men residence in a metropolis rather than in a small town also increased modernism though to a lesser extent differences between brazil and mexico and indeed the united states were found to be surprisingly small of considerably less weight than position in the social structure in predicting value orientations the author addresses himself primarily to sociologists and their students who are themselves studying aspects of socio economic development his findings however cannot fail to be of interest and benefit to social scientists of various disciplines and to all who are concerned with the process of artistic event in brazil during this century observes john nist and he will quickly reply the modern art week exhibition staged in sao paulo in february 1922 this public demonstration and aesthetic manifesto represented a cut with the past a violent break with tradition unparalleled in brazilian history the fact that brazilians still discuss the poetical renovation achieved by modernism shows how strongly the movement attacked and questioned traditional attitudes cherished preconceptions prejudiced aspects of a national sensibility that still persists in some quarters to this day as a movement of research and experimentation modernism was in the words of its principal prophet mário de andrade a rupture a revolt against the national intelligence in time it became a national affirmation that resulted in the integration of brazilian literature into the literature of the western world an integration too long overlooked by members of the english speaking community the literary revolution thus unleashed in 1922 in latin america's largest country is the subject of this book by nist initially fostered by the brazilian poets in response to new challenges in painting sculpture architecture and music the modernist movement has passed through four clear phases which are traced by the author first the destructive and iconoclastic phase 1922-1930 second the serious and socially concerned phase 1930-1940 third the aesthetically formal phase 1940-1950 fourth the concretist experimental phase 1950 to the mid 1960s with similar competence nist examines the fourfold achievement sought by these same poets 1 a new age of humanity as well as a new artistic attitude 2 a new aesthetic purity 3 the termination of the divorce between humanity and nature artist and human 4 the discovery and establishment of a common ground between culture and spontaneity tradition and originality social and natural reality in addition to presenting the origin and evolution of the modernist movement from a historical perspective the author pays critical attention to the artistic achievements of the leading poets of twentieth century brazil mário de andrade oswald de andrade manuel bandeira jorge de lima cassiano ricardo carlos drummond de andrade cecília meireles vinícius de Moraes augusto frederico schmidt murilo mendes joão cabral de melo neto domingos carvalho da silva and others of similar stature drawing on two years of ethnographic research of brazil this book examines how cultural politics shape the teaching learning and uses of literacy drawing on the fields of anthropology comparative and international education and literacy studies the author offers a powerful critique of development discourses surrounding literacy even as she contributes a constructive re imaging of critical literacy and critical pedagogy in uneven encounters micol seigel chronicles the exchange of popular culture between brazil and the united states in the years between the world wars and demonstrates how that exchange affected ideas of race and nation in both countries from americans interpreting advertisements for brazilian coffee or dancing the brazilian maxixe to rio musicians embracing the foreign qualities of jazz seigel traces a lively cultural back and forth along the way she shows how race and nation for both elites and non elites are constructed together and driven by global cultural and intellectual currents as well as local regional and national ones seigel explores the circulation of images of brazilian coffee and of maxixe in the united states during the period just after the imperial expansions of the early twentieth century exoticist interpretations structured north americans paradoxical sense of themselves as productive consumer citizens some people however could not simply assume the privileges of citizenship in their struggles against racism afro descended citizens living in rio de janeiro são paulo new york and chicago encountered images and notions of each other and found them useful seigel introduces readers to cosmopolitan afro brazilians and african americans who rarely traveled far from home but who nonetheless absorbed ideas from abroad she suggests that studies comparing u s and brazilian racial identities as two distinct constructions are misconceived racial formation transcends national borders attempts to understand it must do the same
