1942 Hitler's forces advanced far into the Caucasus in the southern Soviet Union in one of the most ambitious offensives of the Second World War but this extraordinary episode is often forgotten it is overshadowed by the disastrous German attack on Stalingrad which took place at the same time using over 150 wartime photographs Anthony Tucker Jones gives the reader a graphic concise introduction to this remarkable but neglected campaign on the Eastern Front Operation Edelweiss was designed to seize the oil fields of Maikop Baku and Grozny seen by some as a wholly unnecessary diversion of resources from the critical confrontation at Stalingrad the assault on the Caucasus aimed to secure oil supplies for the Germans and deny them to the Soviets as this memorable selection of photographs shows the Wehrmacht came close to success their forces advanced almost as far as Grozny famously raising the Nazi flag over Mount Elbrus the highest peak in the region before they were compelled into a hurried withdrawal by the rapid deterioration of the German position elsewhere on the Eastern Front historians consider the Battle of Rzhev one of the bloodiest in the history of the Great Patriotic War and Zhukov's greatest defeat veterans called this colossal battle which continued for a total of 15 months the Rzhev slaughterhouse or the massacre while the German generals named this city the cornerstone of the Eastern Front and the gateway to Berlin by their territorial scale number of participating troops length and casualties the military operations in the area of the Rzhev Viazma salient are not only comparable to the Stalingrad battle but to a great extent surpass it the total losses of the Red Army around Rzhev amounted to 2 000 000 men the Wehrmacht's total losses are still unknown precisely to the present day why was one of the greatest battles of the Second World War consigned to oblivion in the Soviet Union why were the forces of the German Army Group Center in the Rzhev Viazma salient not encircled and destroyed whose fault is it that the German forces were able to withdraw from a pocket that was never fully sealed indeed are there justifications for blaming this lost victory on G. K. Zhukov in this book which has been recognized in Russia as one of the best domestic studies of the Rzhev battle answers to all these questions have been given the author Svetlana Gerasimova has lived and worked amidst the still extant signs of this colossal battle the tens of thousands of unmarked graves and the now silent bunkers and pillboxes and has dedicated herself to the study of its history Svetlana Aleksandrovna Gerasimova is a historian and museum official after graduating from Leningrad State University with a history degree she worked in the Urals as a middle school history teacher before moving to Tver where she taught a number of courses in history and local history and about museum work and leading excursions in the Tver School of Culture she earned her Ph.D. in history from Tver State University in 2002 for more than 20 years she has been working in the Tver State Consolidated Museum and is the creator and co-creator of many displays and exhibits in the branches of the museum and in municipal and institutional museums of the Tver Oblast recent museum exhibits that she has created include the Battle of Rzhev 1942-1943 and the fatal Forties Toropets district in the years of the Great Patriotic War she has led approximately 20 historical and folklore ethnographic expeditions in the area of Tver Oblast and is the author of numerous articles in such journals as Voprosy istorii questions of history voenno istoricheskii arkhiv military history archive voenno istoricheskii zhurnal journal of military history and zhivaia starina the living past and of other publications in 2009 she served as a featured consultant to a Russian NTV television documentary about the Battle of Rzhev which quickly became controversial for its very frank discussion of the campaign Stuart Britton is a freelance translator and editor residing in Cedar Rapids Iowa he has been responsible for making a growing number of Russian titles available to readers of the English language consisting primarily of memoirs by Red Army veterans and recent historical research concerning the Eastern Front of the Second World War and

On February 21, 1943, Pan American Airways celebrated seaplane the Yankee Clipper took off from New York's Marine Air Terminal and island hopped its way across the Atlantic Ocean, arriving at Lisbon the following evening. It crashed in the Tagus River, killing twenty-four of its thirty-nine passengers and crew. Americans in a world at war trace the backstories of seven worldly Americans aboard that plane: their personal histories, their politics, and the paths that led them toward war. Combat soldiers made up only a small fraction of the millions of Americans both in and out of uniform who scattered across six continents during the Second World War. This book uncovers a surprising history of American noncombatants abroad in the years leading into the twentieth century's most consequential conflict. Long before GIs began storming beaches and liberating towns, Americans had forged extensive political, economic, and personal ties to other parts of the world. These deep and sometimes contradictory engagements, which preceded the bombing of Pearl Harbor, would shape and in turn be transformed by the U.S. war effort. As the Yankee Clipper's passengers travel, they take them from Ukraine, France, Spain, Panama, Cuba, and the Philippines to Java, India, Australia, Britain, Egypt, the Soviet Union, and the Belgian Congo, among other hot spots. Their movements defy simple boundaries between home front and war front and upend conventional American narratives about World War II.

Glantz's book is a testament to the nearly two million Russians who lost their lives during the battle for Leningrad. 90 illustrations, 16 maps. Winner of the Pulitzer Prize and New York Times bestseller. In the first volume of his monumental trilogy about the liberation of Europe in World War II, Pulitzer Prize winner Rick Atkinson tells the riveting story of the war in North Africa. The liberation of Europe and the destruction of the Third Reich is a story of courage and enduring triumph of calamity and miscalculation. In this first volume of the Liberation Trilogy, Rick Atkinson shows why no modern reader can understand the ultimate victory of the Allied powers without a grasp of the great drama that unfolded in North Africa in 1942 and 1943. That first year of the Allied war was a pivotal point in American history: the moment when the United States began to act like a great power, beginning with the daring amphibious invasion in November 1942. An army at dawn follows the American and British armies as they fight the French in Morocco and Algeria and then take on the Germans and Italians in Tunisia. Battle by battle, an inexperienced and sometimes poorly led army gradually becomes a superb fighting force. Central to the tale are the extraordinary but fallible commanders who come to dominate the battlefield: Eisenhower, Patton, Bradley, in late 1942 hitler's forces advanced far into the caucasus in the southern soviet union in one of the most ambitious offensives of the second world war but this extraordinary episode is often forgotten it is overshadowed by the disastrous german attack on stalingrad which took place at the same time using over 150 wartime photographs anthony tucker jones gives the reader a graphic concise introduction to this remarkable but neglected campaign on the eastern front operation edelweiss was designed to seize the oil fields of maikop baku and grozny seen by some as a wholly unnecessary diversion of resources from the critical confrontation at stalingrad the assault on the caucasus aimed to secure oil supplies for the germans and deny them to the soviets as this memorable selection of photographs shows the wehrmacht came close to success their forces advanced almost as far as grozny famously raising the nazi flag over mount elbrus the highest peak in the region before they were compelled into a hurried withdrawal by the rapid deterioration of the german position elsewhere on the eastern front historians consider the battle of Rzhev one of the bloodiest in the history of the Great Patriotic War and Zhukov's greatest defeat. Veterans called this colossal battle, which continued for a total of 15 months, the Rzhev slaughterhouse or the massacre. While the German generals named this city the cornerstone of the eastern front and the gateway to Berlin by their territorial scale, number of participating troops, length and casualties, the military operations in the area of the Rzhev-Viazma salient are not only comparable to the Stalingrad battle but to a great extent surpass it. The total losses of the Red Army around Rzhev amounted to 2,000,000 men; the Wehrmacht's total losses are still unknown precisely to the present day. Why was one of the greatest battles of the Second World War consigned to oblivion in the Soviet Union? Why were the forces of the German Army Group Center in the Rzhev-Viazma salient not encircled and destroyed? Whose fault is it that the German forces were able to withdraw from a pocket that was never fully sealed? Indeed, are there justifications for blaming this lost victory on G. K. Zhukov in this book, which has been recognized in Russia as one of the best domestic studies of the Rzhev battle? Answers to all these questions have been given. The author, Svetlana Gerasimova, has lived and worked amidst the still extant signs of this colossal battle: the tens of thousands of unmarked graves and the now silent bunkers and pillboxes. She has dedicated herself to the study of its history. Svetlana Aleksandrovna Gerasimova is a historian and museum official. After graduating from Leningrad State University with a history degree, she worked in the Urals as a middle school history teacher before moving to Tver, where she taught a number of courses in history and local history and about museum work and leading excursions. In the Tver School of Culture, she earned her Ph.D. in history from Tver State University in 2002. For more than 20 years, Svetlana Gerasimova has been working in the Tver State Consolidated Museum and is the creator and co-creator of many displays and exhibits in the branches of the museum and in municipal and institutional museums. Of the Tver Oblast Recent Museum exhibits that she has created include the Battle of Rzhev, 1942-1943 and the fatal forties Toropets district in the years of the Great Patriotic War. She has led approximately 20 historical and folklore ethnographic expeditions in the area of Tver Oblast and is the author of numerous articles in such journals as Voprosy istorii (Questions of History), Voenno-istoricheskii arkhiv (Military History Archive), Voenno-istoricheskii zhurnal (Journal of Military History), and Zhivaia starina (The Living Past) and of other publications. In 2009, she served as a featured consultant to a Russian NTV television documentary about the Battle of Rzhev, which quickly became controversial for its very frank discussion of the campaign. Notable recent titles include Valeriy Zamulin's award-winning Demolishing the Myth: The Tank Battle at Prokhorovka, Kursk, July 1943, an operational narrative; Helion 2011; Boris Gorbachevsky's Through the Maelstrom: A Red Army Soldier's War on the Eastern Front, 1942-45, University Press of Kansas, 2008; and Yuri Sutiagin's and Igor Seidov's Mig Menace over Korea: The Story of Soviet Fighter Ace Nikolai Sutiagin, Pen & Sword Aviation, 2009. Future books will include Svetlana Gerasimova's analysis of the prolonged and savage fighting against Army Group Center in 1942-43 to liberate the city of Rzhev and more of Igor Seidov's studies of the Soviet side of the air war in Korea, 1951-1953.
