excerpt from a readers guide to great twentieth century english novels in varying ways conrad s emphasis on the individual artist s conscious mind as guide to his artistic conceptions an anti traditionalist position and a throwback to the philosophy of the 1890 s the time of conrad s apprenticeship found its counterpart in the statements of huxley virginia woolf and joyce conrad was following in his way flaubert s attempt to make the novel a major artistic form not merely a type of entertainment concern with form a major french preoccupation did not significantly begin in england we remember until george eliot meredith and conrad turned to the novel and only the latter practiced what he theorized after conrad we find several state ments of novelistic theory incorporated into the novel itself as exam ples stephen s sermon on art in a portrait the remarks in philip quarles journal in point counter point and indirectly the tense discussions between loerke the devilish creator and ursula and gud run brangwen near the end of women in love about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

Readers guide to contemporary English novel 1965 at first glance a guide to english literature may seem to be no more than a short bibliography of english literature with perhaps rather more extensive and certainly more outspoken comments on the principal editions commentaries biographies and critical works than bibliographies usually provide but it is something more this guide contains long inter chapters that provide reinterpretations of the principal periods of english literature in the light of modern research as well as two final sections summarizing in unusual detail the literary criticism that exists in english and recent scholarship in the field the purpose of this book then is to provide the reader with convenient access to a disciplined study of the texts themselves this guide proposes itself as a new kind of literary history the conventional history of literature has often tended to become a substitute for the reading of the literature it describes the better the history the greater the temptation to substitute it the present combination of reading lists and inter chapters cannot be a substitute for anything else meaningless as literature in themselves they nevertheless provide the necessary preliminary information to meaningful reading since oddities of arrangement derive from these assumptions the authors are not arranged alphabetically instead there are chronological compartments with the divisions circa 1500 1650 and 1800 in which authors succeed each other in the order of their births this pioneering handbook is primarily a bibliographical laborsaving device it is meant mostly for students and the general reader in that it stops where original research by the reader is expected to begin however the last chapter on literary scholarship is devoted specifically to the research specialist and provides indispensable equipment for the reader there is also a general section on literary criticism which will be of use to all f w bateson 1901 1978 was university lecturer in english literature at oxford and a fellow and tutor of corpus christi college founder and editor of the periodical essays in criticism he is also editor of the four volume cambridge bibliography of english literature and the author of a number of critical studies of english poetry and drama
