experimental aspects of on farm research which should help on farm researchers to arrive at solid conclusions taking into account rather than eliminating variation among farmers excerpt from the natural history of the farm a guide to the practical study of the sources of our living in wild nature a little earlier there lived in your locality a race of red men whose cruder tools and weapons were made of int of bone and of copper who planted native seeds among them the maize the squash and the potato and whose traditions were mainly of war and of the chase these were indeed children of nature dependent upon their own hands for obtaining from mother earth all their sustenance there was little division of labor among them each must know at least each family must know how to gather and how to prepare as well as how to use today you live largely on the products of the labors of others you get your food not with sickle and ail and spear but with a can opener and you eat it without even an inkling of where it grew so many hands have intervened between the getting and the using of all things needful that some factory is thought of as the source of them instead of mother earth suppose that in order to realize how you have lost connection you step out into the wildwood empty handed and look about you choose and say what you will have of all you see before you for your next meal where will you find your next suit of clothes and what will it be like ah could you even improvise a wrapping and a string with which to tie it from what wild nature offers you
