creme eggs babita sharma was raised in a corner shop in reading and over the counter watched a changing world from the clientele to the products to the politics of the day along with the skills to mop a floor perfectly and stack a shelf she gained a unique insight into a shifting landscape and an institution that despite the creep of supermarkets online shopping and delivery has found a way to evolve and survive and is now once again keeping us all going from the general stores of the first half of the 20th century one of which was run by the father of a certain margaret thatcher to the neighborhoods in the 1930s life is exciting full of adventure romance crime births deaths marriages elopements all told with humor and honesty of the problems and triumphs of ordinary people winner of the 2015 rubery award for fiction in 1949 the arrival of an italian family sets tongues wagging in the village of leyton an english farming community still recovering from the war for seventeen year stern eye the onorati brothers adapt to their new life in remarkably different ways while the charismatic vittorio is determined to reinvent himself and embrace all things english the solitary lucio is haunted by the secrets of his past events that tether him to the war in the mountains of lazio as both brothers begin to cast an unexpected influence over leyton connie realises that like them she must grapple with her ambitions and dreams for the future but what can any of them hope to find in the ruins of all they ve lost the italians at cleat s corner store is a heartwarming vividly observed tale of small town life exploring love prejudice and identity in the wake of world war ii praise for jo riccioni this may be jo riccioni s debut but it has all the hallmarks of an accomplished and assured novelist while the narrative has us captivated the prose itself is a sheer joy characters are vivid similes and metaphors are nailed with ease themes emerge quietly and then flower to illuminate the sense of the book a romantic and enthralling story the age a lovely sense of history and place with acute observations on village life both english and italian a very confident first novel the launceston examiner a lively diary chronicling the ups and downs of running a grocery shop in a yorkshire town during the rationing years of the second world war kathleen hey spent the war years helping her sister and brother in law run a grocery shop in the yorkshire town of dewsbury from july 1941 to july 1946 she kept a diary for the mass observation project recording the thoughts and concerns of the people who used the shop what makes kathleen s account such a vivid and compelling read is the immediacy of her writing people were pulling together on the surface bert has painted the v sign on the shop door she writes but there are plenty of tensions underneath the shortage of food and the extreme difficulty of obtaining it is a constant thread which dominates conversation in the town more so even than the danger of bombardment and the war itself sometimes events take a comic turn a lack of onions provokes outrage among her customers and kathleen writes i believe they think we have secret onion orgies at night and use them all up the brooke bond tea rep complains that tea need not be rationed at all if supply ships were not filled with useless goods such as corn flakes and there is a long running saga about the non arrival of smedley s peas among the chorus of voices she brings us kathleen herself shines through as a strong and engaging woman who refuses to give in to doubts or misery and who maintains her keen sense of humour even under the most trying conditions a vibrant addition to our records of the second world war the power of her diary lies in its juxtaposition of the everyday and the extraordinary the homely and the universal small town life and the wartime upheavals of a nation there are only two tragedies in life one is not getting your heart s desire and the other getting it fourteen year old lucky
