the antebellum period has long been identified with the belated emergence of a truly national literature and yet as meredith l mcgill argues a mass market for books in this period was built and sustained through what we would call rampant literary piracy a national literature developed not despite but because of the systematic copying of foreign works restoring a political dimension to accounts of the economic grounds of antebellum literature mcgill unfolds the legal arguments and political struggles that produced an american culture of reprinting and held it in place for two crucial decades in this culture of reprinting the circulation of print outstripped authorial and editorial control mcgill examines the workings of literary culture within this market shifting her gaze from first and authorized editions to reprints and piracies from the form of the book to the intersection of book and periodical publishing and from a national literature to an internally divided and transatlantic literary marketplace through readings of the work of dickens poe and hawthorne mcgill seeks both to analyze how changes in the conditions of publication influenced literary form and to measure what was lost as literary markets became centralized and literary culture became stratified in the early 1850s american literature and the culture of reprinting 1834 1853 delineates a distinctive literary culture that was regional in articulation and transnational in scope while questioning the grounds of the startlingly recent but nonetheless powerful equation of the national interest with the extension of authors rights rise and demise of nations are man made and can be humanly controlled these are neither naturally determined nor divinely fated this book captures the root process presiding over the problems challenges and the opportunities nations of the world face today america has a three dimensional problem its process controls have equated its purpose controls internally it has developed integration energy traps externally it has created a dangerously interest based world order america must move to the next level of human collectivity or an armageddon might hit us all within the next few decades the muslims idea of state is too invalid antiquated and perilously anti liberty to allow large political systems to evolve in the islamic world it has been incessantly sinking back into anarchy the arab spring is continuation of medieval chaotic and identity based shift of power devoid of value and political mass with the given trends the world must be ready for more talibans bin ladens and al qaedas possibly equipped with weapons of mass destruction india and china have big n factor but at controls level unsustainability afflicts china and an age old identity clamp is failing india both nations will see reversals in near future china must realize that economic future is a component of political future not the other way round india must understand that democracy divorced from political creativity leads back to tyranny and anarchy the basis of the entire debate is integration energy theory which explains the reality of human togetherness in a timeless and non spatial manner the bell system dominated telecommunications in the united states and canada for most of the twentieth century but its monopoly was not inevitable in the decades around 1900 ordinary citizens farmers doctors small town entrepreneurs established tens of thousands of independent telephone systems stringing their own wires to bring this new technology to the people managed by opportunists and idealists alike these small businesses were motivated not only by profit but also by the promise of open communication as a weapon against monopoly capital and for protection of regional autonomy as the bell empire grew independents fought fiercely to retain control of their local networks and companies a struggle with an emerging corporate giant that has been almost entirely forgotten the people s network reconstructs the story of the telephone s contentious beginnings exploring the interplay of political economy business strategy and social practice in the creation of modern north american telecommunications drawing from government documents in the united states and canada independent telephone journals and publications and the archives of regional bell operating companies and their rivals robert macdougall locates the national debates over the meaning use and organization of the telephone industry as a turning point in the history of information networks the competing businesses represented dueling political philosophies regional versus national identity and local versus centralized power although independent telephone companies did not win their fight with big business they fundamentally changed the way telecommunications were conceived
