among the world s religions christianity and judaism are the most symmetrical but in our day of religious tolerance a tendency to overlook the vital differences between the two religions in the name of good will can undermine constructive jewish christian dialogue in this book bruce d chilton describes early christian thought and jacob neusner describes early judaic thought on fundamental issues such as creation and human nature christ and torah sin and atonement and eschatology at the end of each chapter each assesses the other s perspective and a final chapter explains why the authors believe theological confrontation not just comparison defines the task of interfaith dialogue today

Faith That Lasts 2021-01-26

please fix my kid in their work as christian apologists father and son stuart and cameron mcallister have heard many variations on this theme from concerned parents it s a sentiment lots of christian parents can relate to a deep and fearful sense of their own inadequacy to raise their children in the faith amid a seductive culture that s often hostile to christianity in faith that lasts the mcallisters reflect on their own experiences of coming to christian faith stuart from a life of crime on the streets of glasgow and cameron in the context of a loving christian home together they outline three dangerous myths that we all too easily buy into that fear can protect our children that information can save them and that their spiritual education belongs to the experts they reconsider each myth in the light of the christian faith and their own experiences when our confidence is rooted in the good news of jesus our homes can be places of honest conversation open handed exploration and lasting faith

Seven Sermons to the Dead 2012-01-27 the latin manuscript septem sermones ad mortuos written by jung in 1916 holds a unique and somewhat mystical position in jung s oeuvre it was conceived during a time of intense introspection and self exploration a period that jung described as his confrontation with the unconscious during this time jung was in contact with hermann hesse who integrated many jungian themes into his own works especially the novel demian which explores the uber deity abraxas here jung explores 4 main themes gnosticism pleroma creation and duality and god abraxas the text is full of references to gnostic thought and manuscripts it presents itself as the sermons of the ancient gnostic basilides in alexandria although it s a product of jung s own imagination and reflective exploration pleroma is a gnostic term for the fullness or totality that is the source of all creation the pleroma represents the undifferentiated primordial reality the sermons touch on the emergence of different qualities from the pleroma leading to the duality inherent in creation such as light and darkness fullness and emptiness god is discussed as the personification of certain dominant aspects of the pleroma the text also introduces abraxas a deity who transcends both god and the devil embodying both good and evil life and death one could argue that abraxas is a metaphor for biological deep time this edition is a new 2023 translation with an afterword by the translator a philosophic index of jung s terminology and a timeline of his life and works

Snowbound with the Rodeo Star 1867

this book is a study of the misuse of power which has become the chief social problem of our time the usual attitude towards will to power is that it is a source of evil and should be held in check as much as possible there is also the contrary attitude that will to power is a natural impulse that is indispensable for a good life our judgment in this matter depends upon whether it is we who seek power or someone else there is a natural love of power for a good end there is also an unnatural lust for power that makes the exercise of power an end in itself this lust is the corruption of love by a radical distemper in the human soul it cannot be explained in terms of the quest for security freedom prosperity or any other rational good it is not caused either by biological traits or by any particular environment it is generated by man's despair with his destiny by the power of death and the anxious guilt that prevail in human existence lust for power is primarily a description of the process by which love of power is changed into lust for power with special emphasis on the new power available in our technological society and upon the despair evoked by the modern world in the last chapter faith and culture are presented as the double antidote to lust and as the conditions of a life at once natural and good in the afro cuban lukumi religious tradition more commonly known in the united states as santería entrants into the priesthood undergo an extraordinary fifty three week initiation period during this time these novices called iyawo endure a host of prohibitions including most notably wearing exclusively white clothing in a year in white sociologist c lynn carr who underwent this initiation herself opens a window on this remarkable year long religious transformation in her intimate investigation of the year in white carr draws on fifty two in depth interviews with other participants an online survey of nearly two hundred others and almost a decade of her own ethnographic fieldwork gathering stories that allow us to see how cultural newcomers and natives thought felt and acted with regard to their initiation she documents how during the iyawo year the ritual slowly transforms the initiate s identity for the first three months for instance the iyawo may not use a mirror even to shave and must eat all meals while seated on a mat on the floor using only a spoon and their own set of dishes during the entire year the iyawo loses their name and is simply addressed as iyawo by family and friends carr also shows that this year long religious ritual which is carried out even as the iyawo goes about daily life offers new insight into religion in general suggesting that the sacred is not separable from the profane and indeed that religion shares an ongoing dynamic relationship with the realities of everyday life religious expression happens at home on the streets at work and school offering insight not only into santería but also into religion more generally a year in white makes an important contribution to our understanding of complex dynamic religious landscapes in multicultural pluralist societies and how they inhabit our daily lives

this book is a historical account of how natural philosophers and scientists have endeavoured to understand the universe at large first in a mythical and later in a scientific context starting with the creation stories of ancient egypt and mesopotamia the book covers all the major events in theoretical and observational cosmology from aristotle's cosmos over the copernican revolution to the discovery of the accelerating universe in the late 1990s it presents cosmology as a subject including scientific as well as non scientific dimensions and tells the story of how it developed into a true science of the heavens contrary to most other books in the history of cosmology it offers an integrated account of the development with emphasis on the modern einsteinian and post einsteinian period starting in the pre literary era it carries the story onwards to the early years of the 21st century
