from a historical perspective similarities among the lutheran churches in denmark iceland norway and sweden are easily understood but these previously homogeneous northern societies built on a lutheran tradition with close ties between church and state are now considered to be among the most secular in the world as well as being impacted by a growing presence of other religions these changes present a major challenge to the churches concerning how to relate to the state and how to be a folk church the goal of this volume is to explore how lutheran identity presently shapes churches in the north what are the burning issues engaging these churches at the beginning of the third millennium are there signs that they are affected by the global emergence of a theology and practice commonly known as neo pentecostal or charismatic what is the situation for women in these churches embedded in societies ranked among the world's most egalitarian in what ways does their lutheran heritage influence how these churches shape themselves today the point of departure for this study is not a predetermined normative understanding of what a lutheran church is or should be but the fact that the churches presented here represent what lutheranism is today in this part of the world contributors include anne louise eriksson steinunn arnhrudur bjornsdottir solveig anna boasdottir niclas blader carl reinhold brakenhielm thomas ekstrand arnfriður guðmundsdottir goran gunner harald hegstad hjalti hugason roger jensen halvard johannessen peter lodberg benedicte hammer præstholt karin sarja ulrika svalfors merete thomassen marie thomsen marie vejrup nielsen and else marie wiberg pedersen in the early twenty first century it had become a cliché that there was a god gap between a more religious united states and a more secular europe the apparent religious differences between the united states and western europe continue to be a focus of intense and sometimes bitter debate between three of the main schools in the sociology of religion according to the influential secularization thesis secularization has been an integral part of the processes of modernization in the western world since around 1800 for proponents of this thesis the united states appears as an anomaly and they accordingly give considerable attention to explaining why it is different for other sociologists however the apparently high level of religiosity in the usa provides a major argument in their attempts to refute the thesis secularization and religious innovation in the north atlantic world provides a systematic comparison between the religious histories of the united states and western european countries from the eighteenth to the late twentieth century noting parallels as well as divergences examining their causes and especially highlighting change over time this is achieved by a series of themes which seem especially relevant to this agenda and in each case the theme is considered by two scholars the volume examines whether american christians have been more innovative and if so how far this explains the apparent god gap it goes beyond the simple american european binary to ask what is american or european in the christianity of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries and in what ways national or regional differences outweigh these commonalities
